

Space, Scientific Treaties in Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev today added treaties on joint spaceflight and scientific cooperation to their strategic arms agreement and other successes at the Moscow summit.

Their chief advisors were putting finishing touches on the treaty to limit strategic nuclear weapons — with a signing reported set for Friday — and also were pushing for an agreement on Soviet-American trade.

The second day of the summit began with a one-hour, 50-minute meeting of the full conference at a 40-foot table in the Kremlin's Catherine Hall.

Before the meeting began, sources on both the Soviet and American sides passed the word that the final details had been worked out on a series of scientific and trade agreements. Most of the work was completed on the arms agreement, growing out of the ongoing Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Helsinki.

Gerard C. Smith, the chief U.S. negotiator at Helsinki, plans to come to Moscow for the signing of the initial agreement, but said today more meetings were needed with his Soviet counterparts before he leaves.

Brezhnev, the general secretary of the Soviet Communist party and No. 1 man in the Moscow hierarchy, had at his side President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

With Nixon were Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, the President's advisor on foreign security affairs.

Conference sources said the morning session centered on European matters.

The space agreement called for a joint flight in 1975 by three American astronauts and three Soviet cosmonauts on a Russian space station.

Delegations of Soviet and American scientists have spent more than two years working out technical problems involved in docking an American ship with the Soviet station.

Other scientific negotiators worked out a pact on cooperation in various scientific and technical fields, and conference sources said an agreement was near on Soviet-American trade.

Nearly all of Nixon's time in the first three days of the summit was spent inside the Kremlin. He went outside for the first time today to place a wreath at the tomb of Russia's unknown soldier beneath the Kremlin walls.

It was a solemn ceremony, with a dirge or recorded music sounding as Nixon placed the wreath. A flame burns constantly at the tomb.

Thousands of Muscovites, held back on sidewalks near the Unknown Soldier's shrine, watched without gesture or sound as Nixon placed the wreath at a granite slab bearing the words, "Your name is unknown, your deeds are immortal." Helped by two aides to put the six-foot wreath in a folder, Nixon personally adjusted the ribbon.

Nixon stepped back and stood in silent tribute for a minute while a loudspeaker echoed a recorded Soviet dirge. He then entered his limousine, motored around Red Square and returned to the Kremlin for the day's talks, which aides said would be a full plenary session.

Conference sources said they expected an agreement on broadened U.S.-Soviet trade based on a compromise over Soviet war debts to the United States to be signed Thursday.

Both U.S. and Soviet officials said they were all but certain that an agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons, both offensive and defensive, would be signed Friday. They said it would include restrictions on both nuclear submarines and long-range bombers.

South Vietnamese Marines Land in Quang Tri Province

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese marines with U.S. air and naval support punched ashore in Quang Tri Province today in an old-fashioned World War II-type amphibious operation aimed at disrupting Communist supply trails. The air war blazed up again, and Hanoi Radio reported heavy strikes near Haiphong.

No losses were reported among American advisers who stormed the beaches with the South Vietnamese marines, but an American CH47 Chinook helicopter was shot down in the Hue area further south with the loss of five American lives.

Hanoi Radio in reporting heavy new U.S. air strikes in the Haiphong port area said its planes shot down 11 American jets in dogfights over the Hanoi-Haiphong area Tuesday and three more today. The U.S. command reported shooting down four MIGs over the north Tuesday and had no comment on Hanoi's claim of 14 kills.

The Pentagon disclosed Tuesday that the American air raids against North Vietnam are far more flexible in target selection than those carried out during the Johnson administration. They include such industrial targets as thermal power plants as well as military targets.

The South Vietnamese commando raid came from U.S. helicopters and landing craft and was timed at disrupting the move of North Vietnamese supplies down the coast for the Communist offensive that began on March 30.

U.S. spokesmen said the assault came at Wunder Beach, 10 miles east of captured Quang Tri City, aboard U.S. Marine CH46 Sea Knight and CH53 Jolly Green Giant helicopters and from U.S. 7th Fleet amphibious vessels.

The U.S. Navy maintains a force of 5,000 U.S. Marines aboard the ships off the coastal areas but they were not involved in today's landing. But U.S. Navy and Air Force F4 Phantoms and big guns of the U.S. 7th Fleet gave full firepower support.

Initial reports said the Saigon marines also destroyed two PT76 tanks and captured 20 tons of rice, some of it in bags with Chinese markings.

Field dispatches said there were indications the North Vietnamese had been trying desperately to resupply for their offensive but had been hurt badly by heavy American air strikes in North Vietnam and by artillery fire and by U.S. naval gunfire.

Military sources said the North Vietnamese on the 56th day of their offensive seemed more concerned with hanging on to Quang Tri City than launching a major drive against the old capital of Hue, 32 miles to the south.

U.S. spokesmen said an American helicopter was shot down today when it was caught in a mortar barrage at Fire Base Helen, 15 miles west of Hue, and all five aboard were killed. The big chopper was on a resupply mission at the time.

To the south, other government marines crossed the My Chanh River to serve as a blocking force, allied military spokesmen said. At least 1,000 South Vietnamese marines were involved in the raids, which saw American F4 Phantom jets bomb the beach and lay down protective smoke screens.

They heavy cruiser USS Newport News fired its eight-inch guns into the beach before the landings and the Navy also used two light cruisers and five destroyers to fire in support of the South Vietnamese. B32 bombers also struck the area hours before the assault, the U.S. command said.

Spokesmen in Saigon said initial reports showed that the Marines killed 133 North Vietnamese troops in scattered clashes, destroyed two Soviet-built PT76 amphibious tanks and captured 40 weapons and 20 tons of rice. South Vietnamese losses were two dead and nine wounded, spokesmen said.

The U.S. command said American planes struck 190 times over North Vietnam on Tuesday, blowing up power plants and fuel storage depots at Haiphong, Nam Dinh and Dong Hoi. The raiders also destroyed a railway bridge and damaged a highway span near the major port of Vinh, spokesmen said.

Field reports said heavy fighting flared today along Highway 13 south of the besieged province capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon. The reports said a South Vietnamese armored column of tanks and armored personnel carriers was pushed four miles to the district town of Chon Thanh, 20 miles south of An Loc.

Expect No Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no chance the current Moscow summit talks will bring any change in the status of the American prisoners held by North Vietnam, administration officials say.

President Nixon is expected to bring the prisoner situation to the attention of Soviet officials during the summit discussions, the officials said, "but nothing that happens (in Moscow) will affect the POWs."

Hanoi "is holding them as hostages" in support of its demand that the United States give in to a North Vietnamese-dictated political settlement of the war, the officials said.

There is no evidence, the sources stated, to indicate the Soviets could pressure a change in Hanoi's attitude even if they wanted to.

Nixon has made release of the POWs and an accounting of all missing Americans conditions for a total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam and an end to the current mining and bombing campaign against the North.

In spite of the North Vietnamese refusal to move on the POW issue, officials in the State Department say there is no indication Hanoi retaliated against the American prisoners in the wake of the intensified U.S. military actions.

In fact, they say, the captives apparently are being well treated. "North Vietnam claims the treatment is good," one official said, "and that is confirmed by travelers."

The list of known prisoners has climbed from 491 before their invasion March 30 to 494 a week ago; the total of missing American troops increased 63 to 1,089.

In answering questions about effects on the families of American POWs of the President's bombing and mining of North Vietnam, the officials said "there has been growing dissatisfaction among the wives, but the militancy is not dovish, rather it's hawkish."

They are in favor of the President's action, by and large, the officials maintained, because it represents positive action, "which is what they want, short of the release" of the captives.

Natural Gas in Catskills May Solve Fuel Problems

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Mountain area was reported by Dr. John M. Bird, chairman of the Geology Department at State University at Albany. He said that it is only recently with the big demand for low pollution fuel that engineers and geologists have begun to consider the resort area.

Interested in the Catskill Mountain area was reported by Dr. John M. Bird, chairman of the Geology Department at State University at Albany. He said that it is only recently with the big demand for low pollution fuel that engineers and geologists have begun to consider the resort area.

Ulster County "is smack in the middle of an area of New York State being seriously considered as a rich source of natural gas." And, the presence of natural gas in the Catskills and the Lower Hudson Valley is seen as a probable answer to the fuel shortage in New York, New Jersey and throughout New England.

Although most of the nation's domestic gas wells are in Texas and Louisiana, with some in Western New York and Pennsylvania, a well discovery was made recently just west of Ithaca with a net value of $300-$400 million on a tract of 300 to 400 acres.

The fact that some major oil companies, including Shell, are also dug in Windham Highlands to Glens Falls and from Glens Falls down to Saratoga and the Mohawk Valley.

The discovery potential is high, he said, because of the types of sedimentary rock, and their thickness and age, which are similar to those in other areas of the world which contain large quantities of natural gas.

Bird said that although the limestone rock is thought to be up to 15,000 feet thick, the growing gas gap could make the costly geo-physical operation more attractive.

The proposed explorations are significant, he concluded when one considers the possibility of gas rationing in this part of the country during the next three or four years.

After Rhode Island, Oregon Primary Wins

McGovern Aims for California

By United Press International

George S. McGovern easily swept East Coast-West Coast primaries in Rhode Island and Oregon Tuesday, picking up momentum for his classic political showdown with Hubert H. Humphrey in California that could decide the Democratic presidential candidate.

A happy, smiling McGovern said "not bad for one day's work" as the returns gave him top-heavy victories in Rhode Island and Oregon and 56 more delegate votes.

In addition to his 34 votes in Oregon and 22 in Rhode Island, McGovern picked up 11 delegates in congressional district elections in Missouri. Another 44 uncommitted delegates were selected and the final 18 of a total of 73 will be chosen at the state convention.

Far out front, McGovern now has 506 delegate votes, more than one-third of the 1,509 needed to win the nomination. Bunched behind him are George C. Wallace, 312, Humphrey, 291.85, and Edmund S. Muskie, 166.6.

But the big prize is California where the winner gets all the state's 271 delegate votes, always politically unpredictable in California.

Humphrey and McGovern are locked in a bitter, tight race which could be decided by three nationally televised debates before the voting June 6.

Although New Jersey, New Mexico and South Dakota hold primaries the same day, Humphrey and McGovern are determined to fight it out in each state.

Wallace termed "serious candidate." Story on Page 7.

Humphrey, who did not campaign in either Oregon or Rhode Island, shrugged off the results.

With all of Rhode Island's precincts reported, the returns showed McGovern 41 per cent; Muskie 21 per cent; Humphrey, 20 per cent; Wallace, 15 per cent. The rest were scattered among four minor candidates and uncommitted.

In Oregon, with 58 per cent of the precincts in, McGovern had 51 per cent; Wallace 19 per cent; Humphrey 13 per cent; Henry Jackson 5 per cent; Edward M. Kennedy 3 per cent; Muskie 3 per cent; Patsy Mink 2 per cent; Shirley Chisholm, 1 per cent.

Wallace, bedridden and still partially paralyzed by a would-be assassin, finished a solid second in Oregon, comfortably ahead of Humphrey.

Queen Elizabeth Hoax... Report Student Being Sought

NEW YORK (UPI)—The extortionist who threatened to blow up the Queen Elizabeth 2 last week never showed up to collect the $350,000 ransom left at an undisclosed upstate New York location by the Cunard line.

The company said Tuesday a Cunard vice president left the bag, supposedly containing the money, at the designated drop site Thursday night but when the bag was still there the next morning, it was retrieved.

FBI headquarters in New York City declined to comment on a story in today's New York Daily News which quoted "sources close to the investigation" as saying that a New York "Community College" student was wanted for questioning in the connection with the plot.

The story said the student, a black canvas bag supposedly filled with the money to a lone, 14-hour reverse "treasure hunt" familiar through friends with details of a short story written by a Hunter College student, which The Daily News called "almost a blueprint for the hoax as it was committed." The story said that the hoax had been called in by a male "matured New York voice."

According to The Daily News, the Cunard vice president took the call and "went himself with a black canvas bag supposedly filled with the money to a lone, 14-hour reverse "treasure hunt" familiar through friends with

State Prison Reform Bill Signed by Gov. Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Eight months after the Attica prison rebellion, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller today approved a supplemental spending plan that earmarks $12 million for prison reform and possibly a "maximum" correctional unit.

Rockefeller also signed a bill making it easier for prosecutors to prove rape charges and vetoed a bill that would have taken away the authority of the state education commissioner to make state aid payments.

The prison reform money would be turned over to the Correctional Services Department for improvement of programs, administration and buildings.

Whether some form of special treatment facility would be developed to handle incorrigible inmates remained to be seen.

A sum of $1.35 million was tagged for "the operation of programs as required," but Republican legislative leaders insisted this was not for the program that Democrats said would amount to a "concentration camp."

The demand for a "maximum security-maximum program" facility developed following the Attica rebellion, which claimed 43 lives.

Rockefeller signed prison reform legislation establishing an inmate furlough program, permitting ex-convicts to work where alcoholic beverages are sold and reduce the parole requirements for murder and kidnapping sentences.

Prisoners released under the furlough program would have up to a week to search for jobs, solve family problems or undergo training. Selected convicts would also be permitted to leave confinement for up to 14 hours a day for education, volunteer work or employment—an extension of the two-year-old work-release program.

To qualify, prisoners would have to be eligible for parole or discharge within one year. The law takes effect June 23 for a two-year test period.

In a move to minimize differences in parole procedures in crimes before and after the 1967 revision of the penal code, Rockefeller signed a bill that would let prisoners convicted of murder and kidnapping eligible for parole after serving 20 years instead of 26 years. Prisoners convicted of the crimes after 1967 may be eligible for parole after 15 years.

Another bill lets ex-convicts work in businesses licensed to sell alcoholic beverages for off-premise use, such as supermarkets.

The prison money was part of $38 million in supplemental spending that is used to tie up loose ends the basic $7.9-billion budget. Among other things, the supplemental budget contained construction funds for 38 community colleges, $3 million for college scholarships and $500,000 for educational television stations.

The bill Rockefeller signed dealing with rape prosecutions eliminates the present requirement that the victim produce other evidence to corroborate her own testimony regarding the accused rapist's identity and the element of penetration. The woman still must produce evidence to corroborate her charges that force was forced and penetration attempted.

Groups contending that rape was too difficult to prove under past jurisprudence requirements had sought the bill, saying also that the requirements for corroboration cast inordinate suspicion on the victim.

The new law also eliminates what Rockefeller described as "the wholly illogical content" of the past law about related charges. Because of difficulty in obtaining the necessary corroboration beyond a victim's testimony, prosecutors have sought to convict accused rapists of charges related to the rape, such as burglary, theft or assault.

If rape were not proved under the law, the governor said, then other charges, such as possession of a weapon or bodily assault, would not be provable.

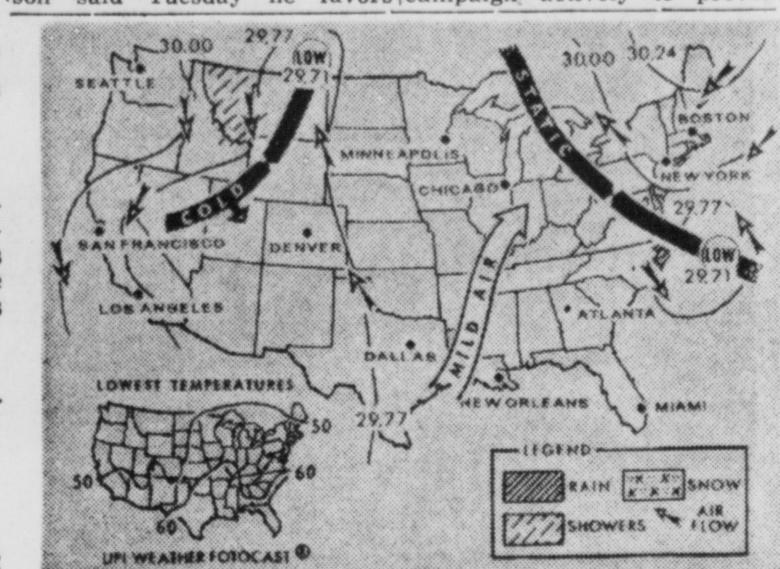

Turning to education, Rockefeller said that there would be no purpose in transferring the authority of the state education commissioner to dispense state aid. Under the proposed change, the authority would have been switched to the state comptroller.

Various state agencies and private associations recommended the veto, Rockefeller added.

At the same time, Rockefeller vetoed bills that would have mandated the continuance of Hunter College elementary and high schools and authorized the State University and the City University of New York to contract with private colleges to buy supplies.

Wilson Will Campaign Against Gambling Law

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. (UPI)—Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson said Tuesday he favors repeal of the state off-track betting law and said he will campaign actively to prevent liberalization of other gambling laws.

Tonight will find showers scattered across parts of the Northern Rockies. Otherwise, clear to partly cloudy skies will rule the remainder of the nation. Minimum temperatures include: (approximate maximum readings in parentheses) Atlanta 61 (83), Boston 52 (65), Chicago 59 (80), Dallas 67 (88), Denver 48 (80), Duluth 53 (76), Jacksonville 65 (85), Kansas City 58 (78), Los Angeles 58 (72), Miami 67 (87), Minneapolis 55 (78), New Orleans 69 (88), New York 58 (73), Phoenix 62 (94), San Francisco 53 (66).

Wilson, who generally refrains from comment on issues before the legislature, told a local radio station that he believes OTB operations cut too deeply into state revenues of the race-tracks.

Wilson also said he is "unalterably opposed to amendments passed in the current session that would be the first step toward making New York State the Las Vegas of the East."

If the measure seems likely to pass in the next session, Wilson said, he would "personally take the issue to the people and work for its defeat."

If approved next year, the proposed constitutional amendment would go before state voters in November, 1973.

The interview was by station WVOX.

Birthright

Editor: The Freeman

In response to the letter in The Freeman by Phebe Aeberli in defense of the Area Council of Churches stand on abortion, and the Rev. Mr. Ogden's qualifications in the area of human suffering—I cannot help but make a few comments on her position. I speak from over two years of active involvement in Right to Life and the study of such problems.

Legalized abortion does not solve the problems of society, rather we must seek and work towards viable and constructive alternatives—

- 1) Education in marriage and family life
- 2) Training in responsible sexuality
- 3) Support and counseling of unwed mothers
- 4) Greater funding for research and education in birth defects and handicapped children
- 5) Elimination of racial and economic discrimination

Abortion merely treats a symptom, we need to get to the root of these problems.

Man does not have the power from God nor himself to judge what unborn child shall live and what shall die, but our problem is we think we have and we call it in the name of humanity.

I've seen the thankfulness in the faces of young women who have been brought to term, because people cared about them and their fatherless babies. Girls who considered abortion but who found an alternative through our Birthright programs. Girls who know that there are people who care about the value of life—that every life is a sacred trust and will do all that they can to see to it that it keeps its value. The same value that is guaranteed under the 14th Amendment: The Right to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness.

Birthright is one of 50 centers in the country and Canada dedicated to helping pregnant girls and women, married or single, to bring their babies to term and avoid the tragedy of abortion.

It is a nonprofit, and non-denominational group of people offering lay, spiritual and psychological counseling, private housing and guidance to community faculties. It also offers professional counseling both before and after you give birth, but most of all it offers anonymity. For further information call Right to Life 331-7858, Birthright Albany 463-2183, New York City 260-2700. In Kingston your local Catholic Charities office will aid anyone in need of this service.

So you see, Phebe Aeberli, we do know something of the human tragedy that has led the troubled to abortions—we just feel there is an alternative—as does H. Clark Bell, who voted for repeal, Senator James L. Buckley and President Nixon who did not show poor judgment, but took a very courageous stand against the self-interest groups who are profiting from abortions. These same groups who have deliberately been misleading the public in their attempts to profit from human misery.

No, Phebe, I do not feel that the Rev. Mr. Ogden and the Area Council of Churches have all the facts and I still ask, "Who does the Area Council of Churches represent, when they support this horrendous law?"

"Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, before you came to birth I consecrated you" Jeremiah 1. 5. "God shaped us all within our mother" Job 31. 15. Jeremiah and Job credited God with our creation in the womb—how then does the Area Council of Churches justify their stand?

Adirondack Park

Editor, The Freeman:

This letter was addressed to Richard Lawrence, Chairman of Adirondack Park Agency in Ray Brook:

Through this open letter I should like to join many who have voiced their opposition against Horizon Corporation's intended development of 24,300 acres of land within the boundary of the Adirondack Park.

Some in our county wish to seize upon any promising proposal that would seem to bring additional capital into the North Country. The amount of taxes collected will rise, of course, but the services required may well swallow up these additional taxes, as these normally do in rapidly expanding communities.

As far as extra employment opportunities are concerned, these are too problematic. Roads and other improvements will no doubt be done by large companies which will bring their workers into the area with them. Building will be done by carpenters and electricians of whom we already have too few. It does not appear justified to expect that any large number of our currently unemployed will profit greatly by this project.

The greater issue is what will happen to our North Country area if this and succeeding projects are permitted within the Park. Horizon Corporation's president stated "A development of this sort represents progress, growth, achievement and if our county fails to welcome it the result will be stagnation to our economy and the future of our children will be endangered."

We recall how frequently we have heard similar ideas from those who would profit by "developing" our neighborhood. To take virgin land and develop lakes, golf courses, roads, homes until it is completely "humanized" had something to be said for it when great areas of undeveloped land remained in our country. But now almost none remains outside National Parks.

It was your Agency, of which you are chairman, that was established to make certain the character of these Adirondack lands should not be allowed to change radically and that the open areas, forests and mountains, natural streams, natural environment of animals, would be maintained.

Should your Agency fail in this crucial point, posed by plans of Horizon Corporation, it would have failed in the very purpose for its being created. Not only we who live nearby but the whole of America who love the outdoors and natural environments unchanged by man will be so much the poorer, not only now but in future generations.

Speeding Cars

Editor: The Freeman

There are too many automobile accidents for us to remain healthy. What does it take to get a police car to stand by just to slow some of the speeders down? Why do the police always show up at 'choice' spots? I see them all the time at the Thruway circle for example. But how come my wife and I called numerous times and were told by the state police that they were too busy to put a car near my home to slow people down.

The next day I read that 48 police were used to arrest a few people for marijuana. What is it going to take before they do anything? Do my children have to be hit and possibly killed first? Should I take the law into my own hands and throw stones at passing speeding cars? Can't motorists read? The sign says 20 so they go 60. I'm totally disgusted with the apathy of the police. I wish my children to be raised without bodily injury incurred by some immature individual with a driver's license he does not deserve. One particular spot is on Route 32 between DeWitt Lake Road and LeFever's golf driving range in the Bloomington area. I have never seen a state police car waiting there for speeders and yet there have been at least 10 serious accidents in this area in the last two years. I realize the police cannot be everywhere at once but they had better keep their eyes open in the areas where such accidents are getting routine. I still know how to throw rocks and could easily connect with a speeding-by windshield. Maybe I won't have to if the police slow them down.

Sincerely,
GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Youth's Problems

Editor, The Freeman:

I read with dismay and concern the front page article in The Daily Freeman, Thursday, May 18, 1972, concerning the rise of gonorrhea in Ulster County and the subsequent need for additional funds. While I applaud any program that facilitates the control of a disease, I deplore some of the attitudes put forth in the article. I refer to the comments which concerned young people.

I have worked with many young people during the past year, and I have been impressed by their maturity and thoughtfulness. They seem to me to be concerned about venereal disease and other difficult problems of our time.

There is much ignorance concerning not only venereal disease but all diseases. The article mentioned that young people believe in simple treatment. Perhaps this is due, at least in part, to society itself. Many people, young and old, watch medical television programs which present and solve many complicated medical problems in one or two hours. Television commercials extoll the virtues of "simple treatment": Aspirin will banish headache, Somnux lets you sleep, take Contact for your cold... the list is long of such claims.

I have read many words about young people this year. Too many of them have been derogatory. We all know there are problems. I wonder how many of us know that young people are trying to find information and knowledge; that they are trying to understand the world around them and within them; in short, that young people are worthy of our respect... and our help.

Sincerely,
SUSAN SPALT

Hits Nixon Decision

Editor, The Freeman:

Please make this message available to the people of Kingston. President Nixon has taken on the biggest responsibility of the world. He has through his decision and action to blockade North Vietnamese harbors decided to play Russian roulette with the U.S.A. He is playing poker with the U.S. as chips.

How a man can take such action in a country such as ours suggests the existing myths in our society. Do we as the people have any influence upon the government, apparently not. Even the Congress was left out of this 'democratic' action.

I beg each and everyone of us to examine our beliefs and hopes of this country and take the time to write our congressman voicing our views upon Nixon's action.

President's Decision

Editor, The Freeman:

I am writing this letter in reference to your editorial, dated May 10, 1972. The President's decision.

Grave, Concern, were your starting words and you asked questions such as:

1. Was such a drastic decision necessary?

2. Were there no other alternatives, etc. Sir, you were right on one statement, it was the President's Decision.

Mr. Nixon did not start this war, but he certainly is trying to stop it.

In reference to Question No. 1, do you really call this drastic? To stop the supplies from coming in, should have been done in 1965, and this war wouldn't have dragged on so long.

On Question No. 2, can you think of any? I feel that the President has tried every avenue possible. Also I'm a little sick of the news media running this country. There's a mighty thin line between lawful discord and down and out treason. So how about sticking to the job of reporting the news as opposed to making it. We elected Mr. Nixon to do the job, not the news media.

Sincerely,
MR. LYNN MEHRMANN

Vietnam Alternatives

Editor, The Freeman:

President Nixon's speech ordering a virtual blockade of North Vietnam is a tired recapitulation of the argument that to obtain peace we must wage more war.

The notion of American withdrawal from Indochina has been denounced as abandoning a faithful ally to "a long night of terror." But, a small voice asks each of us, are they better off now? Are our brave little friends in the rice paddies better off with tens of thousands of tons of bombs raining down on them, day and night? Our bombs, let it be noted! Are they better off under the tender attentions of Mr. Thieu, with his interesting notions of progressive leadership, than they would be under some coalition government or even one dominated by God forbid, Communists? Is it really true what some people say, "Better dead than Red"?

After 12 years of undeclared war on a small nation, it's time for the President and the American people to realize that there is a viable alternative here. It is the first of the three alternatives Mr. Nixon presented, as a straw figure to be dismissed. But it sounds better and better with every desperate lost tactic, and it sounds better to more and more people.

It is withdrawal of all American forces from the war.

A settlement is now needed in this already excruciatingly protracted war. Even the POW's issued a statement calling on the President to cease the bombing and warlike acts. Withdrawal is surely the best way to bring the boys home—alive.

Sincerely,
JANE VAN DE BOGART

'Humane' Society

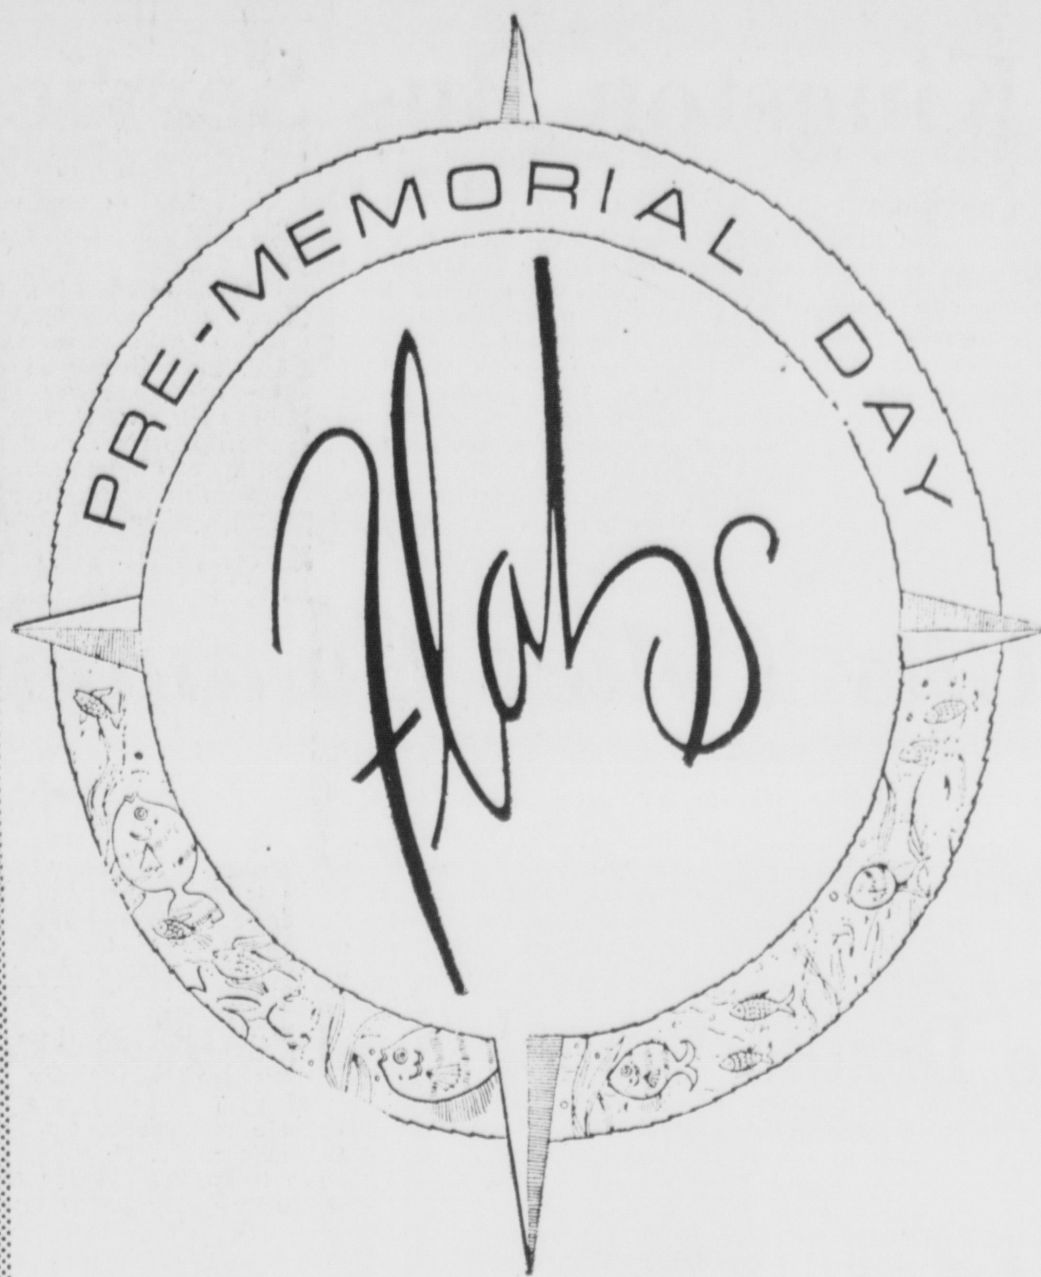

Editor, The Freeman:

Your cooperation in the recent "Be Kind to Animals" week including publicity for the local ASPCA has been noted. Unfortunately in urging school children to adopt unwanted pets, neither you or the well-meaning, but sadly misinformed humane society, has really done anything constructive in solving what has become an overpopulation explosion problem with a resulting public health hazard. In fact both of you appear to be part of the problem.

In this you are not unlike the entire medical profession or the various information media which have all glossed over, glamorized or just ignored a serious environmental pollution. My organization BEGAN together with Dr. Alan Beck are taking the first constructive steps about a problem which has been of concern to individual, isolated human beings for centuries. Unfortunately nobody cared!!

We would like to change that in a "humane" society.

Sincerely,
LILLIAN M. MEAGHER

Kingston Bus Service Now Making Money

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The city's bus service is now a money-making operation, due largely to a fare increase from 25 cents a ride to 35 cents that went into effect on May 1.

Under a temporary busing agreement which went into effect on Jan. 17, the city pays Jerry Ausanio a reported $365 per week for the operation of one bus, six days a week. Up until May 1 when the new rate structure went in, it had been reported as a losing proposition for the city, to the overall extent of about $1,400.

During the week of May 1-6 a total of 1,206 persons rode the bus with the city reportedly realizing a profit of $57. During the week of May 8-13 the passenger total dropped to 1,174 and the city's profit was $45.90.

Fare Increase Cited as Reason

Last week, 1,163 persons used the bus and the city made $42.05.

By way of comparison, the city lost $72 the week of April 24-29 when 1,172 fares were collected. Those fares were only 25 cents each, however. The previous week, April 17-22, a total of 1,136 persons used the bus and the city lost $81. Under the agreement with Ausanio, $365 is the break-even figure.

Anything above that is profit. The city makes up the difference when receipts fail to reach $365 a week, as was the case every week before the fare increases of May 1.

The city's franchised carrier Urban Transit Corp. of Wallkill, canceled its contract with the city on Jan. 1, claiming it was losing money. Mayor Francis R. Koenig instituted the agreement with Ausanio on Jan. 17 on a temporary basis.

Ausanio is paid from funds drawn from the contingency account in the city budget. The Common Council has authorized a total of $11,000 from that account this year to pay for the bus operation.

Receipts are kept in a separate account. Mayor Koenig has asked the city treasurer to set up a separate "pay as you go" account for the city bus operation.

For the past several months the mayor has been working on a permanent bus operation for the city. The possibility of the city purchasing three "flexi-buses" from a firm in Indiana has been discussed but to date no definite word from city hall has been heard on that proposal.

The Common Council, at the request of the mayor, at its May meeting, extended his temporary busing agreement with Ausanio until Aug. 16 of this year.

City Police Commissioner Named

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig has appointed Kenneth N. Lowe Jr. of 85 Shufeldt Street to a four-year term on the Kingston Police Board. Lowe replaces Dr. William B. Dean who was appointed a police commissioner by former Mayor

Raymond W. Garraghan in 1968. Commissioner Lowe is a native Kingstonian, a graduate of the Meagher School and Kingston High School. He attended Brockport State Teachers College and then served four years in the Navy with duty during the Korean War.

A third-generation president of F. Lowe and Son Plumbing and Heating of Shufeldt Street, Lowe is a member of the Redeemer Lutheran Church, a past member of the Church Council, a former member of the board of directors of Wiltwyck Country Club and is active in the Kingston Babe Ruth League and the Junior Football League run by the Kingston Exchange Club of which he is also a member.

Lowe is married to the former Nancy Hotelling and is the father of three children.

Lowe's appointment was effective today. He is joined on the police board by Commissioners Thomas W. Henebery of 38 Plymouth Avenue, Harold L. Kaye of 125 Emerson Street and John Napoleon of 29 Roosevelt Avenue.

Koenig reportedly received more than 20 applications for the post of police commissioner including a request from the Ulster County Chapter of the NAACP for the appointment of the city's first black police commissioner. Koenig was in Poughkeepsie today attending a conference of area government leaders on state assistance to localities.

Saugerties Voters to Decide School Sports Referendum

Voters of the Saugerties Central School District go to the polls Thursday from noon until 9 p.m. to decide the fate of a $41,433.75 referendum for interscholastic sports during the 1972-73 school year.

Voting will be held at the Cahill School on Main Street. A story in the Tuesday Freeman inadvertently reported that voting would be restricted to those who had registered for the May 3 election. School oficials said that all residents of the district who are 18 years of age or over are eligible, May meeting of the Board of Education a motion proposed by Peter Kramer and seconded by Robert Francello was passed separate referendum on interscholastic sports. The Saugerties Booster Club reportedly was prepared to circulate a petition that would have required the board to have a referendum, but the action became unnecessary with the board's approval.

The $41,433.75 covers expenses for the district's eight varsity, three junior varsity, and six junior high school teams in several sports. About 400 boys are directly involved in the program and 100 girls participate in three varsity sports.

Mother Wins $100,000 Case on Son

KINGSTON A $100,000 verdict was awarded in Ulster County Supreme Court this week in a motor vehicle negligence action in which a mother brought suit against her son claiming severe injuries sustained in a automobile accident at the New Paltz interchange of the State Thruway several years ago. Plaintiffs in the case were Ilse Hawrysz, the mother; her daughter Kristine, who was awarded $1,000 and Ulana Nadraga who was awarded $350. All were passengers in the car driven by the son, Hans Hawrysz. Charles Gaffney served as trial counsel for the plaintiffs. Defendants in the action were Denise A. Greene and her father, Thomas E. Greene, represented by Thomas J. McCaffrey and Hans Hawrysz, represented by Schleider and Owen.

The jury found Miss Greene, the driver of the other car, free of negligence by a vote of 11 to 1 and found Hans Hawrysz negligent by a vote of 10 to 2. The jury was unanimous in making the awards. Justice Earl Schram Jr. presided.

Same Fact-Finder For School Districts

RHINEBECK Both the Red Hook and the Rhinebeck Central School District faculty-administration contract negotiations will be served by the same man from the Public Employment Relations Board.

PERB announced that Francis X. Doherty of Troy will serve as the fact-finder for both districts.

Contract "impasse" was declared in each case recently, when negotiations, under way for several months, ceased to bear fruit.

Doherty's task will be to review the contracts and expectancies of both administration and faculty in each case and to make recommendations on salary and fringe benefits and obligations of each party.

These recommendations have no executive power. If no contract is agreed upon, a public hearing is mandatory.

With teacher salaries making up more than 50 per cent of a district budget, and budget votes set in the second week of June in both districts, it is generally deemed advantageous to have negotiations concluded by that point in time.

DA Will Hire Summer Interns

POUGHKEEPSIE Dutchess County District Attorney Albert M. Rosenblatt has announced that the Poughkeepsie Area Fund will finance, to the extent of $1,600, a program of hiring four summer interns to work at the DA's office.

Rosenblatt said he received word of this from John Taylor and is "deeply gratified" for the contribution. He noted that students have already been hired and there has been "an abundance" of applications.

The interns will continue to work on complaints received from members of the public in connection with consumer affairs. These complaints involve a host of situations in which members of the community are aggrieved in business dealings.

They will also serve as aides to Assistant District Attorneys in connection with the tasks of the prosecutor's offices.

The DA's office is not strictly responsible for consumer affairs, but members of the public call with complaints anyway.

The students will work for a period of approximately ten weeks and will receive approximately $400 each.

Registration Dates Listed at Dutchess

POUGHKEEPSIE June 19 and 20 have been set as registration dates for Dutchess Community College's 1972 summer session.

Residents who wish to earn credit in one of the 23 academic programs offered may register from 3 to 8 p.m. June 19 or from 2 to 5 p.m. June 20. All registration will take place in Falcon Hall.

Day and evening classes are scheduled to begin June 22.

This year the college will again offer a six-week session for daytime courses and a seven-week session for evening courses, enabling many part-time students to pursue up to six credit hours of study.

Nearly 100 courses will be offered with 125 sections open for enrollment, according to Gary C. Pfeifer, assistant dean of continuing education.

Pre-registration counselling is available to students from 6:30-9 p.m. May 15-19, 20, 22, 23, and June 12-15.

Tuition for course work during the summer session will be calculated on a $21 per credit hour basis for students with a valid certificate of residence.

During the 1971 summer session, about 1,600 students from throughout Dutchess county registered for course work.

A variety of credit-free courses will also begin during late June. Some are industrial technologies offerings in basic and advanced welding, machine tool operation, and a specialized course of piping and electrical drafting.

Two personal interest courses, weaving and tennis, will also be offered.

Elected President Of Big Brothers

POUGHKEEPSIE Richard H. De Lorenzo of Kingston has been elected president of Big Brothers of Dutchess County, based in Poughkeepsie and affiliated with Big Brothers of America.

Others elected at the annual meeting were Douglas Archer, William Storey, Tom De Rose, Frank Cutolo, and Rodney Royal, vice presidents; and Robert Howard, secretary, all of Dutchess County.

De Lorenzo has been a member of Big Brothers since seeing an advertisement of the group in The Daily Freeman in August, 1970. He is currently matched with a 10-year-old youngster in Hyde Park and has been serving several Ulster County communities as well.

He is a Woodstock Jaycee, an Ulster Little League manager, chairman of the Town of Ulster Democratic Committee, and is a member of the Kingston Exchange Club.

De Lorenzo is interested in introducing the Big Brother concept to Ulster County. In a recent speech to the Kingston Lions Club he said: "We must more than double the number of agencies and serve more than five times the number of fatherless boys within this decade if Big Brothers is to become the prominent force it should be in creating a greater society."

Youth Publication Is Now Available

The booklet, a comprehensive listing of private and governmental social agencies in the area, has been updated since its first appearance two years ago.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 24, 1972

WASHINGTON — In the impoverished little land of Paraguay, there is an old saying about dictator Alfredo Stroessner that "never a bird falls without his knowing about it."

This is reputed omniscience has kept the burly El Presidente in full control of Paraguay for 18 years while his opponents have died mysteriously or fled into exile.

Thus, the American embassy in Asuncion was astonished when Stroessner, of all people, confessed to our ambassador, Raymond Ylitalo, that he would like more information about the narcotics traffic in Paraguay. Stroessner claimed he wanted to stamp it out.

The efficient Ylitalo forwarded the request to the State Department, and the Central Intelligence Agency obligingly included it in a detailed, secret summary of drug operations in Paraguay.

The memo declared that Stroessner was up to his jackboots in smuggling, though there was no proof he dealt in drugs. His tight little dictatorship, however, was described as "the Heroin Crossroads of South America," with much of the dope going to the United States.

We published the secret details on April 22. The dictator promptly sent word to us through his ambassador to Washington, Dr. Roque Avila, that he was surprised at the allegations and asked for the names of those behind Paraguay's drug trade.

We have now supplied Avila with the names. The CIA memo, for instance, mentioned a "secret police" official who reportedly was "heavily involved in the (drug) traffic." The CIA didn't name him, but we told Avila the suspect is none other than Stroessner's trusted Chief of Investigative Police, Pastor Coronel.

Generals Implicated.
The CIA also alleged — again without names — that "two important generals" were deep in narcotics.

We identified one as Gen. Andres Rodriguez, the sternly handsome commander of 3,000 American-equipped troops based near Asuncion. His troops stand guard over contraband warehouses, and he controls aircraft for smuggling.

The other is Gen. Patricio Colman, a light infantry commander, whose troops put down an armed liberation movement in 1960, slicing off tongues, ears, heads and other parts of prisoners. Colman thereafter gained a smuggling franchise, considerable wealth and control of cross-country bus lines.

We have also uncovered the identities of other high Paraguayan figures, who are directly controlled by Stroessner, are responsible for the drug trade. These men, whose names we have also given Avila, include:

— Sabino Augusto Montanaro, gray-haired interior secretary, and his right-hand man, National Police Chief Gen. Francisco Brites. No large-scale dope trade in landlocked Paraguay would be possible without their acquiescence.

— General Leodegar Cabello, the spiffy uniformed defense minister, who is aware of the narcotics dealings of Generals Rodriguez and Colman and is suspected of sharing their loot.

— General German Martinez, a pale, garrulous artillery commander who controls contraband in and around Paraguay. With his smuggling proceeds, he has purchased model farms and raises thoroughbred cattle.

— Vice Admiral Hugo Gonzalez, chief of Paraguay's river gunboat navy, who earned his exalted rank by baby-sitting Stroessner's children. His gunboats protect Paraguay and Parana rivers separating Paraguay from Brazil and Argentina.

— Air Force chief Gen. Vicente Quinonez who supervises Asuncion airport and dozens of smaller fields. These are also used for drug transshipments.

— Raul Sapena Pastor, the secretary of state, who personally approves every official and diplomatic passport. He has granted passports to known smugglers. Even diplomatic pouches are used for smuggled goods.

These are some of the names my associate, Les Whitten, provided Ambassador Avila during an hour-long meeting with him at the modest Paraguayan embassy. The envoy insisted he knew nothing about their alleged dope activities.

Footnote: On March 20, President Nixon called narcotics America's "number one domestic problem." Three days later, the United States gave 12 helicopters to Paraguay. U.S. military aid to the "Heroin Crossroads of South America" runs around $2 million a year.

Connally's Mission
Sources close to Treasury Secretary John Connally say his secret mission after leaving the cabinet will be to rally the Lyndon Johnson wing of the Democratic Party into the Nixon camp in November.

Richard Nixon and John Connally have developed a close personal bond. Both are backroom operators and political ingesters. They practice the same pragmatic politics.

During their political bull sessions, Nixon and Connally foresaw the increasing possibility that George McGovern could win the Democratic presidential nomination.

This would alienate ex-President Lyndon Johnson, volunteered Connally.

But he said LBJ would not break formally with the party that had made him President.

Those privy to the Nixon-Connally discussions tell us that Connally has agreed to use his LBJ credentials to recruit disaffected Democrats from the Johnson fold on to the Nixon bandwagon.

They Went to Peking

It is a cliché of journalism that two individuals who see and hear an event make two different reports of it. The return from China of Mike Mansfield, Majority Leader of the Senate, and of his traveling companion, Hugh Scott, the Minority Leader, is a case in point.

Mansfield, a leading dove, found the Chinese want a rapprochement with the United States, but they want us out of Indochina first. Once we are gone, he said the Chinese are confident that the people of Indochina — Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia — will work out their own political arrangements. This was one way of saying that the Communists would take over.

Scott, enthusiastic though he is about Chinese "marginal progress", wondered "How far do China's claims of non-aggressive aim really extend?" He questioned whether it would be possible for China to maintain the 'easily evident fervor and dedication' of its people. He was not very much troubled that Vietnam would interfere in any rapprochement with us.

The fact is that the Communist giants are rivals in Indochina. American mining of Vietnam harbors, cutting off supplies from the Soviet Union, could secretly play into the hands of China, which resents the influence the Soviets gain with their arms supplies.

The American people saw and heard President Nixon in China. Now, they have heard the Senate leaders. The House leaders, Democrat Hale Boggs and Republican Gerald Ford, go to Peking at the end of June. We should be well informed on China before summer's end—though the reports will be tinged with the politics of the political reporters.

G-Girls for FBI

The late J. Edgar Hoover lifelong bachelor, thought the life of a special FBI agent was too dangerous for women and steadfastly refused to consider applications from them for jobs as agents. His successor, L. Patrick Gray, a happily married man, seems to disagree. He has announced steps to allow women to become special agents for the first time in FBI history.

Whether their own marital status has anything to do with their decision, we'll never know. Gray said the policy change was required by an executive order on non-discrimination issued by President Nixon last August 8. He also cited the non-discrimination provisions of the 1972 Equal Employment Opportunity Act, usually invoked in connection with race discrimination, not sex discrimination. Both were in effect during Hoover's life but he bypassed them as not applying to the tough FBI.

Gray said he made the proposal—to allow women into the ranks of the special agents—during a staff meeting with the top 15 FBI aides who had worked with Hoover during his 48 years as the nation's top law enforcement officer, and there wasn't any "real opposition." They either kept quiet out of respect for the new acting director's opinion or they did not feel so strongly about it.

In any case, the G-Girls will have to take the same 14-week intensive training course for prospective agents. They will be exposed to all the hazards, including the rapid handling of the .38-caliber police special, shotguns and rifles. Those who make the grade will be real FBI agents. And another barrier has fallen to women.

cal Association, was suffering severe arthritic hip pains. He sought the aid of two acupuncture specialists, who placed steel needles in his hip, behind a knee and along the lower back. His verdict, "The pain is essentially and literally gone."

New Whip in House

WASHINGTON — After eight years of bombs and bombast, after billions of dollars appropriated and thousands of soldiers sent to die, the House of Representatives is finally getting ready to let people know what it thinks of the Vietnam war.

As the political entity "closest to the people" in the minds of the Constitution framers, the House should have been seismographically sensitive to moods of public opinion. Instead it has been numb, moving sporadically to register views via such feeble devices as "previous question" motions and other parliamentary mumbo-jumbo.

In the next few weeks, therefore, the historic vote may take place in that chamber, the first time since the Gulf of Tonkin resolution in 1964 that these 435 guardians of the public trust have had to face an up-or-down vote on the issue of Vietnam.

The long delay for that moment shows how almost-miraculous has been the feat to pull off the vote amid the vacuum of leadership in the House. The man who engineered the vote is one of the most-fascinating studies in legislative leadership these days, the House Majority Whip, Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.

In the House everybody loves "Tip." All the more remarkable then that he has been able to maneuver the House toward a vote that so many of its leaders — and followers — have been striving so hard to avoid.

The House seldom suffers from overexposure in the news media, and that's just fine with the oligarchs of the House. O'Neill, as the exception to prove the rule, is due to receive more attention. It has already begun in political science circles.

In a senior political science thesis at Johns Hopkins University, James M. Shannon has compiled a 60-page "case study in legislative leadership" covering O'Neill's Congressional career.

Shannon documents with a keen eye the folkways of the relationship with other members, including Speaker Carl Albert and Majority Leader Hale Boggs.

"He is probably the most popular leader in the House," says Shannon, because of "a personality ideally suited for the legislature . . . on a personal level many Republicans speak of O'Neill in more endearing terms than they use to describe their own leaders . . . O'Neill's biggest admirers are from the Deep South . . . with many friends from the liberal Northeast."

A young liberal member of the House spoke of O'Neill's "life style of being kind and charitable to his fellow man and said that 'life style' accounted for his enormous popularity and respect in the House. An older, more Establishment member said, 'Tip knows that you don't have to be disagreeable to disagree and that's why he does so well here.'" reports Shannon's thesis.

The growing number of new members, the record retirement of senior Democrats, and the growing frustration within the House over the Albert-Boggs regime should point to some success for O'Neill in the future, but Shannon's report has a touch of Irish melancholy:

"When O'Neill was made Whip, he told Albert and Boggs that he would remain loyal, and he will. The same ethic of trust and loyalty which made Tip O'Neill such a success in politics will most likely deny him the office which he wants the most, the Speakership."

That sounds correct, but the times they are a-changing, even in the House. If O'Neill has helped bring the House to confront the realities of 1972, then maybe the fates of 1973 will be kinder to him in return.

That Bullet Downed Us All

My country! 'tis of thee

The dust is down. The air has cleared. The battling bantam masks his pain under a slow wink. A bullet stopped his headlong rush. Now, for the first time, he hears the slow tick of his watch. His brown eyes study ceilings and he dreams the impossible.

I do not weep for George Corley Wallace. I weep for us. We are haters. When we cannot beat a man fairly, we ambush him. A bullet emits a short bark followed by a long silence. It was fitting that he came out into the crowd smiling, trusting, both hands out like a good neighbor.

Sometimes I think I did not mature until November 22nd, 1963, when John Fitzgerald Kennedy had one-third of his head blown off. Either I matured that day, or aged suddenly. It doesn't matter. I saw America as a violent country.

Wallace was not my man. He was bellicose. In many areas of political knowledge, he was ignorant. He shouted eternally about "us" and "them" without ever defining who. "Send them a message," he roared, but he said not what or to whom. Nor even why.

Sweet land of liberty . . .

He came up from the red clay and muddy pools of Clio and he rode a fast horse. He had more personal courage than is good for a man to have. He tried a moderate approach on blacks and his horse tripped. George Wallace learned from mistakes. He was never "out-segg'd" again.

Under the cool dome of the capitol at Montgomery, he was a dark fever. He moved. His fast little feet whisked him across the cool stone once trod in dignity by Jefferson Davis, and he addressed the legislature as though they were retarded schoolboys.

He blocked the university door against Assistant Attorney General Katzenbach to keep Alabama's schools white.

When the law told him to step aside, Wallace obeyed the edict with reluctance.

Of thee I sing

His enemy was across the street in the Dexter Baptist Church; the jowly gentleman of Job. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Wallace fought him in Montgomery; he fought him in Birmingham; he fought him at Selma. Times were changing. King had all the high cards. Wallace fought for an old tradition.

The governor lost. He was never a good loser, and chalk that up in his favor. To beat Wallace, you had to flatten him and stand on his chest. When he could not succeed himself as governor, he was not above nominating a sick wife who kn . . . har be about the changing times, the noble lie the "All men are created equal."

When she died, Wallace placed a marble bust of his wife in the rotunda of the capitol. She had spent her strength as an attractive, admirable fiction of a governor while George scrambled to higher places. If his party would not acknowledge him, he would not acknowledge his party.

He stooped to the level of spoiler. He cast himself as a "third choice" for President, knowing that he was helping Richard Nixon. And now he was doing it within the Democratic party, gathering unto his broad chest all those millions of people who are "fed up."

Land where my fathers died

He said "bussin'." He ducked grapefruit and oranges and said, "Those are your people who believe in free speech." He was loved. He was hated. He was a hardy manipulator who shucked his jacket and rolled his sleeves up. He told the poor, the unwashed, the unthinking the things they wanted to hear. Wallace had 2,000,000 primary votes in his pocket.

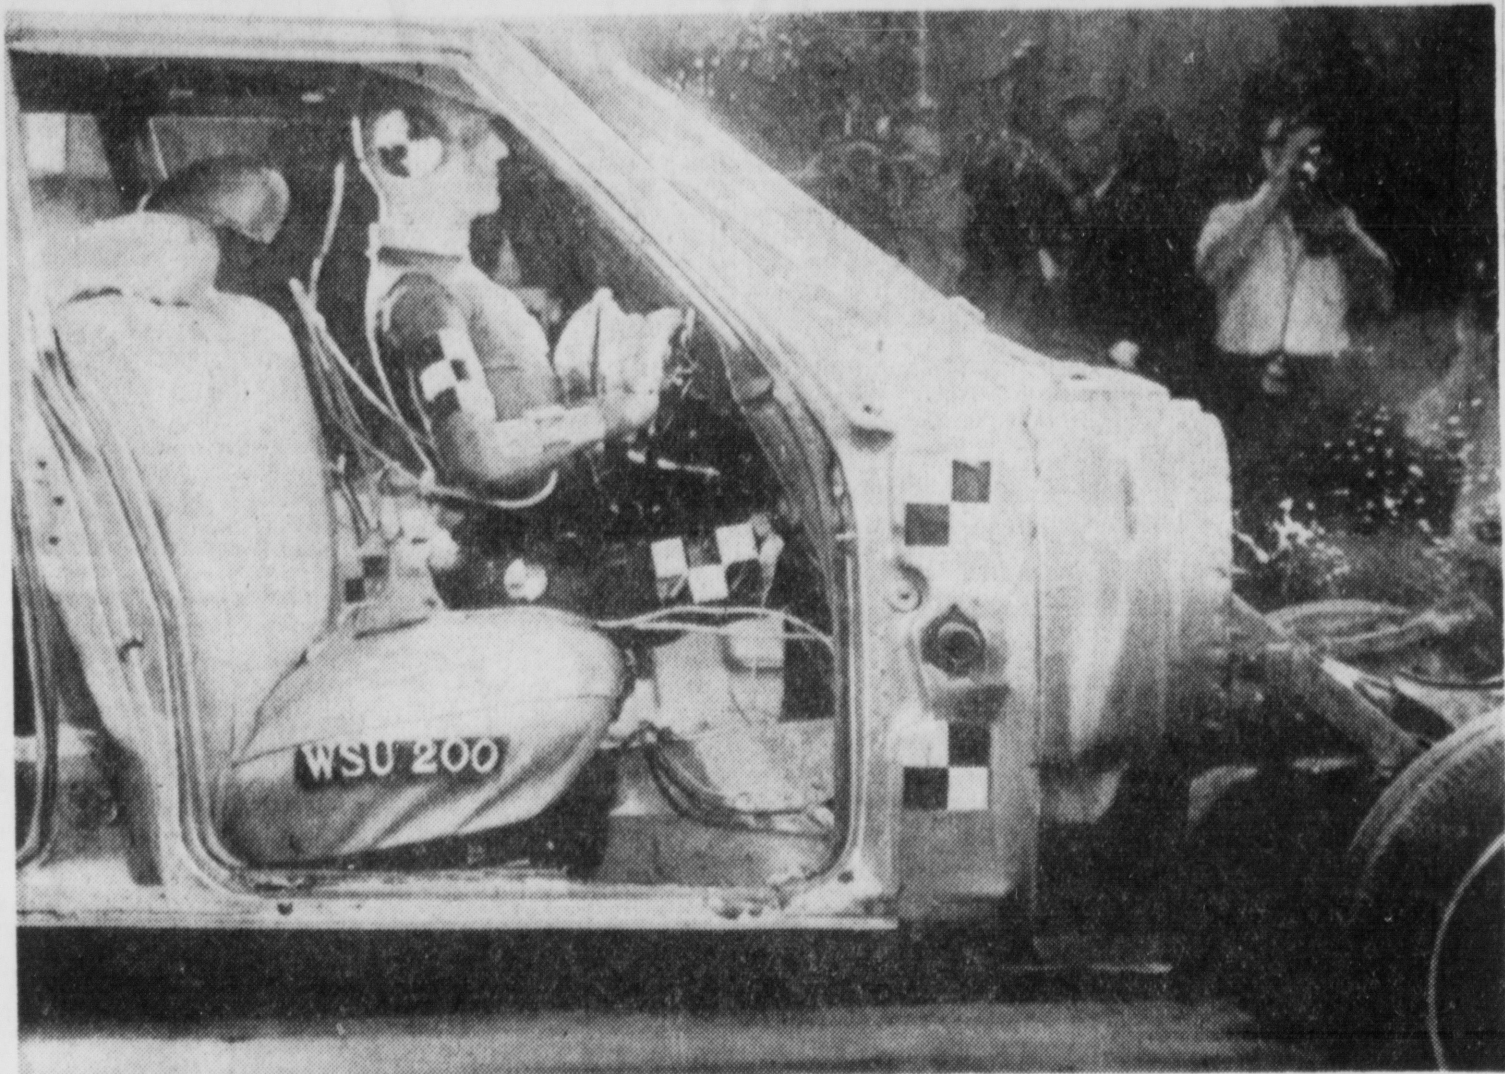

From every mountain side

The bantam battler kept his options open. He would go to Miami Beach as a strong contender for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States. They could accept him and he would remain a Democrat. If they didn't, he would defeat them again as a third party candidate. Either way, he was big trouble.

George Wallace was shot by a cypher. His guts were on hot macadam. He was a Huey Long, a Theodore Bilbo, a Tom Hefflin. He was down, and, for a time, done. The press which despised him wept. The President sent his physician, Humphrey and McGovern croaked the sad dirge of sympathy.

It wasn't George Wallace who was shot. It wasn't a politician who is part evil, part noble. The cornerstone of this republic fell to the pavement and the edifice trembles.

Let freedom ring!

WHERE'S THE BAG? — A dummy, placed in a test vehicle Tuesday to prove the reliability of air bags, broke the steering wheel and slammed its head into the windshield in a 35-mile-per-hour crash when the bags failed to deploy. The air bag, which will become a required safety device on all

O'Brien Terms Wallace 'A Serious Candidate'

By Combined Wire Services

Gov. George C. Wallace says he will be in Miami Beach when the Democratic National Convention opens seven weeks from now, and the party's chairman believes he'll be a serious candidate.

Wallace, able to eat a full meal for the first time since he was shot down in an attempted assassination, made his political plans known Tuesday to Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, who visited him at Holy Cross Hospital.

"I would say that any candidate that has several hundred delegates is a serious candidate," O'Brien told reporters later. "The governor told me he would be down there at Miami Beach. He fully expects to be. I told him we would be looking forward to it and certainly we will have the welcome mat out for him."

However, of the 323 delegates Wallace has won for the Democratic National Convention, only about one-third are really votes he can count on.

The rest are bound to him by state primary laws of tenuous hold. Their hearts—and their votes—may be elsewhere when the presidential nominating begins.

Some of them already are saying they will disregard the state laws binding them and vote for other candidates on the first ballot. Others indicate they will stray on the second or subsequent ballots when their commitments are satisfied. George McGovern looks like the leading beneficiary.

For example, Wallace won all 49 Tennessee delegates in that state's May 4 primary, but six of them already have said they will not vote for him at the convention.

In Maryland, a dozen of the delegates won by Wallace are really McGovern supporters tied to Wallace by the primary vote in their districts.

Current indications are that Wallace will hold the bulk of these through the first ballot, but McGovern is making an open effort to grab his share once they are no longer legally bound.

Other candidates also are expected to gain some delegates once Wallace's hold is broken. The breakdown of delegates to those committed solidly to Wallace shows:

Tennessee 1, Maryland 3, Indiana possibly 5, Florida 67, Alabama 23, Louisiana 3 and Pennsylvania 2 for a total of 104.

After O'Brien departed Wallace ate his first full meal since the attempt on his life May 15. The lunch consisted of a soft boiled egg, jello with whipped cream, vanilla pudding and milk.

His press aide also said the governor continued to feel some sensation in his feet and thigh, despite the paralysis, and doctors said any feeling at all was a good sign at this stage. But they reported no change in the basic neurological condition caused by a bullet lodged against his spine which has left him paralyzed from the waist down.

There was still no indication when the remaining bullet would be removed or whether Wallace would be moved before the operation. Aides also said the governor was given therapy on a tilt table device which permits bed-ridden patients to let their heart and blood vessels become accustomed to upright positions for short periods of time.

Catholics Pushing Peace Drive

ELFAS (UPI) — Roman Catholics, ignoring Irish Republican Army (IRA) threats, pushed their peace drive in Londonderry today. Soldiers in the city experienced their first sniper-free 24 hours in months.

In Belfast, there was more violence. A man found dead of a gunshot wound near the Roman Catholic Andersonstown area today and a soldier killed by a sniper Tuesday night raised the death toll to 339 since August, 1969.

A bomb, the fourth major explosion in Belfast of the day, wrecked the downtown government tax office Tuesday night and damaged several nearby buildings, including the U.S. Consulate, the army said. One passerby was slightly injured.

Chanting "No, no, no," some 2,000 Roman Catholics Tuesday night shouted down John White, an IRA district leader, as he tried to address a peace rally in a school hall in Londonderry's "no-go" Creggan Estate. He left, visibly shaken, witnesses said.

Some IRA supporters inside and outside the hall managed to disrupt the meeting for a time, but did not prevent the nearly unanimous passage of a resolution calling for a halt in violence by all concerned.

Leaders of the rally said their

Conn. Governor Signs Strong Anti-Abort Bill

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill Tuesday night signed a strong anti-abortion bill that permits termination of pregnancies only to save a mother's life.

Meskill returned to the state capitol after 10 p.m. to sign the measure approved earlier by the Senate.

"I'm very happy," the governor said. "I'm very grateful. I think the legislature did a great job."

He had called the legislature into special session to act on the abortion bill.

The signing came after the Senate voted to toss out an amendment that would have allowed abortions up to 20 weeks in cases of rape or incest. The bill, sought by the administration and similar to a law invalidated by a federal court April 18, permits abortions only to save a mother's life. It is designed to preserve and protect the life of the unborn baby from the moment of conception.

The legislation is expected to be challenged in court. Judith Robeson, a coordinator for a women's group, said they were "absolutely going to fight" the new legislation.

Marilyn Seichter, an attorney, said the new law was more unconstitutional than the old one. The legislation, effective immediately, prohibits abortions under penalty of a five-year prison term or a $5,000 fine.

Tradition Observed At Roosevelt Garden

HYDE PARK—Continuing a tradition begun more than 25 years ago, the Roosevelt Home Club will host Memorial Day services honoring President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. on May 29 in the Rose Garden at Home of Franklin Roosevelt National Historic Site, Hyde Park.

The featured speaker this year will be James H. Rowe Jr., who played an active role in the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt from 1934 to 1945. During those years he served in the Department of Labor, Public Works Administration, Department of Justice, and as administrative assistant to President Roosevelt. Since 1946 Rowe has practiced law and served on more than fifteen public and private boards and commissions.

Prior to the ceremony several musical selections will be offered by the choir of St. James Episcopal Church, Hyde Park.

There will be short speeches by Barnett Colton, president of the Roosevelt Home Club, Warren Hill, superintendent of the two National Historic Sites in Hyde Park and Arthur Smith, chairman of the memorial committee. The memorial address by Rowe will be followed by a wreath laying ceremony and "Taps" played by a U.S. Military Academy bugler.

Arthur Smith indicated he expects a large crowd including several members of the Roosevelt family.

The Memorial Day service sponsored by the Home Club, Hyde Park Historical Association, and the National Park Service, was begun in 1945.

Kingston Native Shows Concern Over Steel Industry

By TIM SCHUSTER

PHOENIXVILLE, PA. — Jay Gould Countant's ancestors hunted Indian scalps near New Paltz for $50 apiece, but this Kingston native is concerned with what he considers is the steel industry's production pigheadedness.

Countant, now 88 years old and the last in a line of Huguenots that settled at Rhinecliff in 1640, is associated with the Phoenix Steel Company and is generally acknowledged as one of the world's authorities on making steel.

In speaking with The Freeman on the telephone recently, he explained that a non-polluting method of extracting steel, which is at least 50 per cent more effective in yield than present methods, was originally used by Andrew Carnegie in 1875 and is presently being used, with gratifying results, in several European countries.

But the major United States companies are entrenched in a method in use since 1901 and are apparently satisfied with it. Metallothermic reaction is a method whereby low-cost steel and alloy products are produced without additional fuel heat, for the refining of the molten iron, as it flows continuously from the blast furnace.

Countant says that an 85 per cent metallic yield from blast furnaces is considered good practice in the United States and Britain, but in France and Japan, the world's two largest steel exporters, a 135 per cent yield is obtained through metallothermic reaction.

He mentioned late President Dwight Eisenhower warning the United States when he took office about our steel industry "pricing itself out of the market" to no avail.

Countant said that the "new" steelmaking process nearly eliminates air and water pollution problems, substantially without cost.

The two principal metallothermic elements used in this continuous-flow metal refining process are silicon and manganese which are oxidized, evolving heat at the rate of 12,600 BTUs per pound and 2,975 BTUs per pound respectively.

Explained simply, metallothermic reaction is an uncomplicated way of using the metal itself to produce heat to both melt and refine itself.

The reactions multiply rapidly toward an explosive stage, but this is controlled by adding proper portions of lime, ore, and metal additives.

Countant was born in Kingston and said he still considers it his "hometown." He plans a visit shortly. He is a direct descendant of Louis DuBois and working together with Louis DuBois had 16 sons. One of Huguenots. Hezekiah Countant, some of the Shawangunk Indians. Paren- son and his wife were killed. Grange 918 Anniversary

RED HOOK

The Red Hook Grange 918 celebrated its 70th anniversary recently with about 200 people in attendance and New York State Master Robert Drake guest speaker.

After traditional opening ceremonies by Red Hook Master J. Leonard Rall, the Rev. Joseph Ary, and master of ceremonies Edward Bowman, Raymond Brenzel, Grange Historian, reminisced on the local Grange activities from 1902-1972.

The chapter was organized in Upper Red Hook 70 years ago with first Master John Fulton.

Drake's talk centered around the need for citizens to honor their traditions while respecting the views of one's fellow man. And he presented a certificate to charter member Grace Brenzel.

Several 50-year members attended: Grace Brenzel, Raymond Brenzel, Pearl Burnett, Mae Hamm, Ethel Gallagher, and Herbert Saulpaugh. And 50-year members unable to attend were Lillian Fraleigh, Fay Mead, Gordon Mead, and F. Palmer Hart.

Numerous Granges were represented, including Mt. Hope, Pleasant Valley, Poughkeepsie, Chapel Corners, Upton Lake, Rock City, Amenia, Union Vale, Pine Plains, Oak Grove, Stanford, Millerton, Elizaville, and Red Hook.

Formal Ideas Given

KINGSTON

In an effort to clearly establish the cost to industry of mental illness, the Steering Committee of the Occupational Psychiatry Group of New York City chaired by Dr. Frederic T. Kirkham Jr. was asked to give an official and formal statement setting forth their appraisal of the significance of mental illness to industry.

The committee responded as follows:

psychiatrists in occupational medical service, we see first hand every day the tremendous cost of mental illness. We know that this amounts to immense sums of money each year, but even more importantly we also see the human suffering and anguish caused by this illness that strikes so many. We are grateful that the National Association for Mental Health, organization, is helping us with this troublesome and sad problem. Individually, or as a corporation, there may be little we can do, but by joining with the one million members of the Association we can work together to help find solutions to the nation's most costly health problem. We urge your consideration of corporate support to the National Association for Mental Health."

Charles R. Eickhorn Jr., of Woodstock, president of The Ulster County Association for Mental Health adds:

"The Ulster County Association for Mental Health is a voluntary membership organization with members from all over Ulster County, and I invite all interested persons in the county to join. Our Association endeavors to promote good mental health through education, and in a number of ways our members work for well - coordinated services for emotional illness.

Our office in Kingston is a source of information for all kinds of people and problems, and is experienced in making referrals. We are an agency of the United Way of Ulster County. For more information, contact the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, 27 East O'Reilly Street, open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays."

Glass Bee Is Held

STONE RIDGE

Environmentalists in the Town of Marbletown first started collecting bottles and jars for recycling a year ago. Recently, they held a "glass crushing bee," and when it was all over, seven tons of glass were destined for the recycling center in Newburgh.

The event was supervised by Rosalind and Michael Sedacca, who have organized a number of recycling activities during the past year, and Keith and Brenda MacFarland of the Methodist Youth Fellowship in Stone Ridge, with assistance from all other denominations. The Marbletown Environmental Conservation Commission sponsored the event. Mrs. Marjorie Dunbar is its chairman.

The bottles and jars had been stored at the town's recycling depot since last year. Residents and volunteers had already separated the glass by color prior to the "crushing bee."

Using a glass crusher donated by the Ertel Engineering Co., volunteers smashed each bottle and filled 27 drums with crushed glass. The glass will be taken to Newburgh by a Town Highway Department truck.

A recycling shed is currently under construction at the recycling depot, and by the time the next "crushing bee" is held, the glass will be securely and safely stored away. The cost of the shed's construction will be met by funds raised during recent newspaper recycling drives. The recycling depot is maintained by Grover Smith.

Board OKs Land Course

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community College Board of Trustees approved a one-year diploma course in land surveying to start in September.

Action on the new course was taken at the regular board meeting Tuesday night at the Stone Ridge campus. The final approval is expected to be forthcoming from the central office of the State University of New York, Albany.

In approving the course, trustees noted the growing need for training personnel in the field of land surveying. Endorsement of the program has been received from the New York State Association of Professional Land Surveyors, the State Education Department Division of Professional Licensing; the State Department of Transportation and the Mid-Hudson Valley Association of Professional Land Surveyors.

Dr. George B. Erbstein, college president, noted that the new course will require no added equipment or personnel.

Antibusing Bill Heads for Passage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An ordered school busing on which antibusing bill under attack legal appeals have not been exhausted. Senate leaders agreed to put the measure to a final vote by late afternoon, with predictions pointing to approval. Its fate in the House was less predictable, however, as it comes up there, students. It included language designed to delay for 18 months implementation of any court effort in the Senate Tuesday to send the measure back to a House-Senate conference committee which hammered out the compromise bill in 20 meetings spread over two months.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., who led the unsuccessful effort earlier to include strong antibusing language in the Senate version of the bill, tried to send the measure back to the conference with Senate conferees instructed to take the stronger House language. That effort was defeated on a 44 to 26 roll call.

In addition to the busing moratorium, the bill would ban use of federal funds for busing unless requested by local schools. It also would prohibit federal agencies from withholding other education aid money to force busing unless such busing was "constitutionally required" but did not impair a child's health, education achievement or result in a transfer to an "inferior" school.

This compromise language has been attacked by liberals as still too strong and by conservatives as too weak, with both elements—in the House at least—working to defeat the bill.

Senate liberals such as Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., refused as members of the conference committee, to endorse the measure. But they have not publicly committed themselves on voting against the bill.

Gilmore Scores Fish Report

KINGSTON — "I don't feel Fish has accomplished anything," the Rev. John H. Gilmore, director of the Kingston Human Rights Commission, said today following Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.'s report on Tuesday concerning the Perennial homes project in Broadway East.

Fish toured the homes on Maple Street on April 16 and reported yesterday that he had contacted the Federal Housing Authority officials and was assured that repairs have been promised by the builder "and should be completed by this time" (yesterday).

Repairs have not been completed, according to the Rev. Mr. Gilmore. "I think the whole deal is nothing but promises," Charles Carlton, owner of a 21 Maple Street home, told The Freeman.

Carlton said that Gerald Marquese, the builder, came to his home on May 10 with a contractor and said he would make necessary repairs. "Nobody's showed up since," Carlton said. "It's the same thing all the time."

The Rev. Mr. Gilmore also said today that he has written Jack M. Sable, state commissioner of Human Rights for his assistance in the case. He said that the letter outlined building violations in the homes and also noted that the Kingston commission had contacted FHA in Albany on numerous occasions "but with no success."

Other residents include Mrs. Dora Dunne at 1-3 Maple Street, Mrs. Frances Ector at 7 Maple, Mrs. Dorothy Klingman at 11 Maple and Mrs. Dorothy Roseberry at 13-15 Maple.

Report Woman Jumps Off Area Bridge

POUGHKEEPSIE
An unidentified woman apparently jumped into the Hudson River from the Mid-Hudson Bridge shortly after 10 a. m. today.

John Vleming, the bridge manager, said that two boys crossing the bridge westward on bicycles told him that a car ahead of them had stopped and that the woman got out of the car and jumped over the side of the span. Vleming notified Poughkeepsie city police and the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department.

A spokesman in the Sheriff's Department said that detectives are at the scene investigating and that the department's patrol boat was attempting to locate the woman's body. State Police were notified and were reported to be sending divers to the scene to aid in the search.

Volunteers Check Sites

LOMONTVILLE
Members of the newly formed Marbletown Volunteer Firemen's Association are considering three sites for a common training center for the seven participating companies.

At the organization's regular meeting recently, members discussed the site previously suggested by Marbletown Supervisor Kenneth D. Smith at the town shale bank off Peak Road. However, some reluctance was expressed because of a lack of adequate water at the site. Other sites coming up for discussion were at the site of the Hurley Sand and Gravel Company property in Lomontville and at Ulster County Community College. No decision was reached.

William Coler, MVFA president, distributed copies of the organization's constitution to delegates from the Cottekill, High Falls, Stone Ridge, Kripplush-Lyonsville Vly-Atwood, Lomontville and Marbletown fire companies for their approval.

The Kripplush-Lyonsville department served as hosts for the meeting and furnished refreshments afterward. Meeting dates have been changed to the last Monday of the month and will be rotated among the participating companies. The next meeting will be held June 26 at the High Falls Fire House.

Ambulance Session Is Held

RHINEBECK
More than 200 ambulance rescue personnel from throughout Dutchess County observed techniques of extricating automobile accident victims during a one-day demonstration at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds recently.

The demonstration was co-sponsored by Dutchess Community College and the Dutchess County Ambulance Association.

Philip Whitney of Sterling, Mass. and a team of specialists who have demonstrated for the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons provided instruction in extricating, transporting, and treating auto accident victims.

The six-hour session has been approved for credit toward renewal of the Emergency Medical Treatment certification. Through its continuing education program, Dutchess was the first two-year college in the state to offer instruction in ambulance rescue procedures.

The Rev. Emmett Waite, instructor, has been conducting the training sessions in cooperation with the county's ambulance and medical associations, along with area hospitals.

Vols Meeting Is Scheduled

KINGSTON
The regular meeting of the Kingston Volunteer Firemen's Association will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. at the J.N. Cordts Hose Co. on Delaware Avenue.

President Robert Hinkley announced that discussion will include plans for the company's participation in the Memorial Day parade on Monday, May 29.

The parade will form at the Kingston High School parking lot at 2 p. m., Hinkley noted.

Delegates and members of the association are urged to attend the meeting.

PORT EWEN
A burglary at a Town of Esopus cottage was under investigation today by the sheriff's office.

McGovern Backers Prepare for Primary

KINGSTON in the June 20 Presidential primary, is now starting on next steps in the primary process, according to Mrs. Jan Yallum, who has been obtained from enrolled Democrats in this area during a three-week period. The next process is canvassing all those who were not contacted during the petition drive to inform them about the upcoming primary, she said.

John Gramlich, 59 St. James Street, Kingston has been named canvass coordinator for the area. At this date, approximately 25 others are helping in the canvass. Those who wish to aid may contact Gramlich or Mrs. Yallum.

Future plans include opening a local McGovern headquarters and a mass mailing just before the primary.

Mrs. Yallum stressed that one does not have to be an enrolled Democrat to help, although only enrolled Democrats may actually vote June 20.

The new 25th Congressional District includes Kingston and the Towns of Ulster, Esopus, Lloyd and Saugerties. Also included are Dutchess and Putnam Counties and parts of Westchester and Columbia Counties.

George Del Pizzo of Highland is in charge of the new McGovern headquarters which has opened at 304 Wall Street, Kingston. Working in canvassing operations are Lawrence Roberta and Ronald Steinberg, Town of Lloyd; Robert Gallenz, Sam Berger, Roger Vogt, Mr. and Mrs. William Wolz, Miss Lisa Goodheim, Mrs. Eileen Fustfeld, Town of Ulster.

On the city canvass team are Mrs. Margaret Cline, Mrs. Doranne Markle, Miss Rosalind Marcus, Mrs. Toni Radice, Mrs. Florence Hyatt, Steven Ruff, Mr. and Mrs. John Pannell, Mrs. Betty Hassel, Mr. and Mrs. Philip DuMoulin and Mrs. Michael Zaklow.

The McGovern slate from the 25th District includes Mrs. Yallum, Kingston; George Whelan, Dover Plains; Dorothy D. Parker, Carmel; Barbara Spano, Yorktown Heights; Clarence Johnson, Poughkeepsie; and Frank Branchini, Croton. Alternates are Mary Woods, Peekskill; and Daniel O'Keefe, Poughkeepsie.

Muskie Slate . . . No Petitions

KINGSTON decided to end its candidacy as delegates to the Democratic National Convention in Miami. Former Congressional candidate John Dyson, speaking for the slate said: "Our decision was based on several considerations. First, of course, our candidate Senator Muskie has withdrawn from active competition in the New York State primary. Second, although we have deliberated at great length, we are unable at this time to agree on an alternative candidate. Third, we feel strongly that it would be a violation of the spirit of the reform guidelines for the convention to run as uncommitted delegates or to run pledged to a favorite son. We therefore find ourselves unable to field a slate that could effectively speak to the critical issues of the day and speak on behalf of a candidate."

Conservation Group Lauds Burns

KINGSTON energy sources and the environmentally unsound siting of unnecessary commercial establishments. Burns said: "Some who have alleged that the environmental movement will die out."

John M. Burns, Democratic nominee for Congress from the 25th District including Kingston was named "Conservationist of the Year" by the Cortlandt Conservation Association at its spring meeting at Montrose recently.

Burns is the Democratic candidate who is running against Republican incumbent Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. Laura Seitz, president of the association presented Burns a scroll commending him "For his courageous fight against the polluters of our environment."

"For his pioneering efforts to restore the Hudson River to its original magnificence."

"For his vision which has surmounted the obstacles of other's greed to make possible for all of us, a new day of full appreciation of our birthright."

In accepting the award, Burns praised the association for its efforts which have led to federal enforcement of laws against Westchester County's Croton dump and deterred the proliferation of unsafe atomic TOM FOOLERY — A musical version of Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," will be presented at the M. Clifford Miller Junior High School, tonight at 8 p. m. Appearing in the cast are: (L) Debra Richardson as Aunt Polly; Rod Zickler as Huckleberry Finn; Phil Cunningham as Tom Sawyer; Tim Dean as Judge Thatcher and Sharon Cacopardo as Becky.

McGOVERN HEADQUARTERS OPENED — Supporters of Sen. George McGovern's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination gather in front of the local campaign office at 304 Wall Street, which was opened last week. The store will serve as the center of local "McGovern for President" operations until the June 20 New York State Primary. Shown (L-R) are George E. Whalen, McGovern delegate from the 25th Congressional District; Renee LeClaire, Congressional District Coordinator; Janet Yallum, delegate from the 25th Congressional District and John Gramlich, McGovern's local campaign chairman.

Gilman Calls for War on Drugs

POLITICS CAN WAIT — Two-year-old Scott Joseph Muller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Muller of Deep Park, puts politics aside temporarily for a cupcake and some punch. Scott was present when supporters of Benjamin A. Gilman opened a headquarters in Port Jervis in his bid for the Republican nomination for the 28th Congressional District, which includes Orange and Rockland counties and southern Ulster County.

Campaigning for the Republican nomination for Congress in Ulster County's new 28th Congressional District, Assemblyman Benjamin A. Gilman called for a war on drugs, scored the Metropolitan Transportation Authority as "authoritarian and labeled the Urban Development Corporation a 'gargantuan bureaucracy.'"

Addressing a businessmen's luncheon in Middletown, Gilman chastized the federal government for not using its number one position in the world to stifle the drug crops of the Near East and for not cracking down on the drug processing plants in friendly nations.

"Our nation must rally its vast resources and declare war on narcotic traffic — a scourge on society."

At the same meeting, Gilman said that hopefully the MTA is "beginning to see the light and will soon be listening to our local people and local officials' with regard to Stewart Airport.

Gilman said, "I have repeatedly told MTA Chairman Ronan, to open the plans for Stewart to the local people and to local governments so that the people may be heard." Gilman noted that Dr. Ronan had stated that the MTA expects to open its plans to local governments within the next few weeks.

The assemblyman said that, "While we recognize the economic benefits of Stewart, the arrogant manner in which the MTA is proceeding has produced poor community relations and does not benefit that project one iota."

Gilman noted that MTA's "approach to local people was arrogant in coming in and taking title to property, making property owners pay both mortgage and interest while at the same time making them wait for payment for the property the MTA has purchased for more than six months."

"This is bureaucracy at its worst," he said.

Speaking before the Town of Shawangunk Women's Republican Club and its guests at the 1776 Colonial Inn, Gilman, noted that he has consistently voted against the creation of the UDC, its expansion, and appropriations for this 'gargantuan bureaucracy.' Gilman stated that, "while the objectives of UDC have merit,

I have opposed this agency's 'blank check financing,' its tax exempt status, and its power to override our local governments."

He also reported that he has co-sponsored four bills, this year cutting back the broad powers of the UDC, making it more responsive to local government.

Dawkins... Army Matters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A small group of about 20 officers worked in SAMVA, whose commanding officer, Lt. Gen. George Forsyth, reported directly to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the chief of staff. They came up with ideas that Dawkins called "very refreshing, very invigorating, and by military standards, revolutionary."

"We made the judgment early on that not all wisdom resided in the Pentagon," Dawkins said. "A big part of what we did was to bring together and catalogue good ideas, the new and better ways of doing things that the people throughout the army were suggesting."

In early 1971 a SAMVA-directed field experiment was initiated at Fts. Carson, Benning and Ord allowing the installation commanders there to innovate, make new rules and try out ideas of their own. The experiment was extended to 18 posts in 1972. Some initiatives have not worked out and will be discontinued—for instance, busing between the base and community, disbanded in some cases because of little usage and high cost.

Many ideas have worked well, however, and the best of them will be established as official policy throughout the Army.

SAMVA took a long look at Army discipline.

"There is a lot of concern over what's happening to discipline, especially in the military," Dawkins said. "Are we really losing it as some fear? This is a terribly important question."

"The discipline that is important to the Army is the discipline that makes a soldier fight well under pressure. It's the same discipline, by the way, that enables an athlete to compete well under pressure. That's self-discipline."

"A soldier fights well not because he's afraid of being punished if he doesn't, but because he feels it's his duty to do so, and because he doesn't want to let his buddies down."

"We seek to develop greater trust, a mutual trust between soldier and commander," Dawkins said. "Out of this comes self-discipline."

It was this reasoning that led SAMVA to follow a Ft. Benning sergeant-major's recommendation to allow beer machines in the barracks. Denying soldiers draft, it would have racial bias, discriminated against the unmarried man who could not get a casual drink at the end of his next regular meeting June 1.

For the last 14 months he has been in Washington assigned to the office of the Special Assistant for the Modern Volunteer Army (SAMVA). In a day in which the military is drawing much criticism and Congress is moving toward an all-volunteer force, SAMVA was created to seek ways of attracting more capable young people to the Army.

"Let's face it," Dawkins told us, "The Army has troubles today. With or without the draft, it would have racial bias, discriminated against the unmarried man who could not get a casual drink at the end of his next regular meeting June 1. But these are all problems that enjoy a casual drink at the end of his next regular meeting June 1. But these are all problems that enjoy a casual drink at the end of his next regular meeting June 1."

Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of Ulster County Community College, recently lauded members of the Kingston Lions Club for their generous scholarship support for the College's students.

He spoke to about 50 club members who held a luncheon meeting in the College Lounge and then toured Vanderlyn Hall and the Senate Gymnasium on the Stone Ridge campus.

At the luncheon, President Erbstein recognized a club member, Richard M. Kalish, for his former service of the Board of Trustees at the college.

Among those greeting the Lions Club members was Raymond W. Garraghan, present chairman of the UCCB Board of Trustees.

President Erbstein praised the Lions Club for the annual Exposition it holds each year in Kingston and noted that a newly designed College booth had won second prize at the most recent Expo.

"We were pleased that the Lions Club members were able to hold their meeting on campus and had the opportunity to explore the programs and fine facilities at the College," Dr. Erbstein said.

Demonstrators Assigned to Crews

KINGSTON — Four anti-war demonstrators, who pleaded guilty in City Court Tuesday to charges of disorderly conduct will join the work crews of the Recreation and Parks Department of the city for four days — working without compensation. In addition they paid $50 each in fines.

The four demonstrators are: Leon E. Goudikian, 18, of Commack; Michael John Stamm, 22, of 192 Main Street, Poughkeepsie; Patricia Ann Johnson, 20, of 224 Gage Hall, State University College, New Paltz; and Katherine Ann Gordon, 24, Kerhonkson.

Charges against eight other demonstrators were dismissed yesterday by City Judge Hubert A. Richter. Police Chief Julius Glassman told a Daily Freeman reporter today that it was agreed to drop the charges against the eight with the understanding that they would not participate in similar demonstrations in the city in the future.

"If or when they should return to Kingston," Glassman said, "the same type of acts by them definitely will not be condoned."

The twelve young men and women were arrested May 15 during anti-war demonstrations in front of the Selective Service office on Albany Avenue and the Armed Forces Recruiting Station on Maiden Lane.

In Court today, Judge Richter imposed fines of $50 on each of the four who pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct. Judge Richter also meted out conditional discharges of 15 days in jail — equivalent to suspended sentences.

Under the sentence the two young men and two women must work four days in city parks doing what chores that may be assigned to them. Their work schedule — without pay — started today and will continue through Thursday and Friday and conclude after a tour of duty next Tuesday.

Police officials have denied reports that police "were looking for a confrontation" on the day of the demonstrations, and Chief Glassman contended that reports that the demonstrators were "harassed" by police officers were untrue.

Commissioner Resigns Post

ALBANY — Recently appointed Ulster County Welfare Commissioner Bernhard S. Kramer has resigned from his former post as secretary of the New York State Narcotic Commission.

In accepting the resignation, Howard A. Jones, commission chairman said, "Your never-failing interest and commitment to this commission has helped carry us through some difficult but critically important times."

"I am sure you will apply these new attributes to your new position which you so richly deserve. Certainly, in this case, the commission's loss is Ulster County's gain."

Witness Labels Shotgun Brothers Defense Weapon

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A defense witness says a shotgun purchased by Angela Davis 40 hours before it was used in a 1970 courthouse invasion was bought to defend the San Francisco headquarters of the Soledad Brothers Defense Committee.

Ellen Broms, a Los Angeles social worker, testified Tuesday at Miss Davis' murder-kidnap conspiracy trial that Miss Davis said she bought the gun to defend Soledad House and gave it to Jonathan Jackson — not knowing it would be smuggled into a courtroom Aug. 7 and used to kill a judge.

Miss Davis is accused of giving Jackson the shotgun, two carbines and a pistol and helping him plot an abortive courthouse escape that ended in the deaths of four persons — Jackson, Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley and two convicts.

In her opening statement, Valerie Mitchell, Miss Davis' apartment house roommate, testified kept for target practice by Monday that Jackson apparent members of the Che Lumumba for "any criminal intent or purpose" took the two carbines and Club, an organization of black Communists.

Deputy Nabs Kingston Man

TOWN OF ULSTER — Alertness of a deputy sheriff and quick action on his part early today resulted in the arrest of a Kingston man on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree involving the alleged theft of a car reported stolen in Binghamton.

Arraigned before Kingston Town Justice Richard Albertstadt, Stanley Carmody, 31, of 662 Broadway, Kingston, pleaded innocent. He was committed to the county jail without bail pending a hearing Friday.

First Sergeant Donald Policastro said Deputy Arthur Nersesian was on patrol along the Ulster Avenue Mall at 12:40 a.m. when he spotted an alleged rental car parked near Michael's Diner. The deputy contacted the sheriff's office for a file check on the car and learned the vehicle had been reported stolen.

Nersesian parked the police car across from the diner and within minutes a man later identified as Carmody left the restaurant and drove off in the car. The deputy pursued the vehicle over East Chester Street by-pass and overtook it, arresting Carmody.

Report on Bogus Bills

KINGSTON — Counterfeit $10 bills are again appearing in this city according to police, who have issued a warning to merchants to carefully check bills to make certain they are not bogus.

Detectives reported an apparent phony $10 bill turned up in a deposit allegedly made by the Governor Clinton Hotel at the Bankers Trust Company at the Kingston Shopping Plaza. The serial number of the bill is B51223992H.

Police Chief Julius Glassman suggests that merchants note that number and have it available on cash registers so that employees can check $10 bills that are offered for merchandise.

It was also reported that Clayton Pollacco operator of Pollacco's By-Pass Service Station reported to authorities Tuesday that he found parts of two bogus $10 bills that had been dropped in the driveway at his place of business.

Ironically the serial number of both bills is B51223992H, the same as the phony bill found in the deposit at the uptown bank. The parts of the two counterfeit bills have been forwarded to the U.S. Secret Service Department.

The serial numbers of the three bills are of the same series as several other bogus $10 bills that have been turned over to police in the last several months.

Harassment Case Is Dismissed

TOWN OF KINGSTON — Town Justice Richard Albertstadt dismissed a case involving charges of harassment against John S. Smith of Rosendale in justice court Monday night.

Smith, 22, had been arrested by sheriff's deputies on May 17 following a complaint.

Zip Code . . . No Guarantee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adding that five-digit zip code to first-class or airmail letters doesn't guarantee earlier delivery, a new nationwide test of mail service discloses.

The mailing of nearly 800 test letters by six Associated Press bureaus in as many cities nationwide showed that eight zip codes reached their destinations as fast or faster than zip-coded letters mailed at the same time and place.

A similar survey conducted 15 months earlier produced about the same conclusions.

Officials of the U.S. Postal Service say that zip codes primarily were introduced to aid in processing mail, make possible the hiring of less skilled persons without having to train them intensively and allow a shift to optical sorting machines.

"Not a great many are in operation now, but we are adding them as rapidly as they can be produced and installed," said Joseph F. Jones, director of the Postal Service's Office of Logistics. "The zip code will play an increasingly important role, and allow us to employ more persons with less skills."

The AP survey also indicated:

—Spending the extra three cents for an airmail stamp doesn't necessarily guarantee quicker delivery. In the case of 4 per cent of the letters in the survey, the airmail letters were delivered at the same time as first-class ones.

—Considerable variations exist in delivery time, often not related to distances involved. For example, letters mailed from Los Angeles to Washington reached the capital faster than those mailed from Washington or New York to Los Angeles.

—In three of the test cities, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Houston, the Postal Service handled local letters in an average of one day. The average time in St. Louis was 20½ hours, compared to 33 in Washington.

—Since the Postal Service does not generally operate on Saturday afternoon and Sunday, Friday is the poorest day to mail letters. In most cases they are not delivered until Monday morning; in at least a dozen cases delivery was delayed until Tuesday.

"We are trying to improve the weekend problem which has been acute," Jones said.

The AP survey was designed to test long-distance as well as local service, involving Chicago in addition to the cities already named. Here's how it was conducted:

At 10 a.m. on Monday, each of the six bureaus mailed a total of 22 letters, two to itself and four to each of the other five bureaus. Both letters addressed to the bureau of origin bore first-class postage; one carried the zip code and the other didn't.

Of the letters sent to the other bureaus, one first-class letter had a zip code, one first-class letter without the zip, one airmail letter had a zip code and one airmail letter without it.

A like assortment of 22 letters was mailed by each bureau again at 5 p.m. Monday, then at the same two times on Wednesday and Friday—yielding a 72-letter test of local service and a 720-letter test of long-distance service.

Receiving bureaus logged the hour and day each letter arrived. Like most businesses in urban areas, the bureaus get their mail two or more times a day.

Jones agreed that problem areas exist, and said the service has just initiated a program to analyze them one by one and correct the deficiencies.

The AP survey indicated that local service has been speeded up within the past 15 months. The survey in early 1971 produced only one city, Houston, which handled local letters in an average of one day. This year Houston, Los Angeles and St. Louis matched or surpassed that.

But there were lapses: one letter in Houston and one in Washington took 63 hours to deliver, and one in Los Angeles 67 hours—more than 2½ days in each case.

In the survey, half the letters had zip codes and half didn't. A comparison of arrival times of each pair of letters showed:

—19 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived first.

—64 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived at the same time as those without zip codes.

—17 per cent of the letters with zip codes arrived later than letters without zip codes.

These percentages varied only slightly from those produced in the survey 15 months earlier.

Spring Antique Festival Set

WOODSTOCK
The second annual Spring Antique Festival, to be held May 27, on the Woodstock Playhouse grounds, is planned as a benefit for local charities. The Woodstock Historical Society, the Kings Daughters of the Shady Methodist Church, and the Woodstock Youth Center will be the beneficiaries of the festival and be participants. The Historical Society will display its informative collection of photographs and artifacts from Woodstock's past. The Woodstock Historical Society, founded in 1930, by a small group who felt that Woodstock was a little different from neighboring communities and had a past worth preserving, will make available historical pamphlets and other material based upon Woodstock's past.

Under the leadership of Dr. Martin Schultze, the first Society president and a University of Chicago history professor, many early artists and writers prepared articles for presentation at society meetings. Some of these articles are still in print and will be available at the Festival. For information call Carole or Donald Rhoades.

SUB VETS MEET — U. S. Submarine Veterans of World War II met recently at Oehler's Mountain Lodge, for their annual candlelight ceremony. Shown at the head table (L to R) are Steve Ingrassia, president of the host "Runner" Chapter of Long Island; Henry "Moose" Karn, the organization's state commander; Francis R. Koenig, mayor of Kingston, the guest of honor; and Jack Primmick, northeastern Regional Commander of the Sub Vets. During the ceremony, a candle is lit for each submarine in service during World War II, and as the name of a submarine lost in action is called out, a candle is extinguished in memory of the crew.

Members of the Balloon Sale Committee are Jim Woodard, president; Charles Yankoglu, vice-president; John Iannotti, secretary, and Tim Brodhead. About 35 boys will be participating in the project. The faculty advisor is Robert Boening, a guidance counselor at school. Some of the helium for the balloons will be donated by Walter Smith Welding Supplies, Inc.

The Leo Club, a junior edition of the Lion's Club, was formed four years ago and the annual balloon sale for the Heart Association is one of their major projects usually taking place during February. The boys have collected almost $500 each year.

Not pictured are James DeToles, finance; Ted Corea and Robert Brandt, sound and power and Clifford Harris, tickets.

Saugerties Village Poppy Week Set

SAUGERTIES Mayor Neil Cox has designated this week as POPPY WEEK in the Village of Saugerties, according to a special announcement. The proclamation was signed by Mayor Cox as members of the American Legion Auxiliary, Unit No. 72, looked on. "The hearts of all our citizens in the Saugerties area will be with this commendable effort this year as a means of paying tribute to all our war dead," the Mayor declared. This community is fully cognizant of the great contributions and great sacrifices made by the members of the armed forces and at this time each year we have an opportunity of paying our humble respect to those gallant Americans who laid down their lives in order that we may continue to enjoy the blessing of freedom.

"It is also an opportunity for all of us to pay tribute to those brave men and women who still live as victims of the wars," Mayor Cox pointed out. "The funds collected by the American Legion Auxiliary are used to aid the many veterans still in hospitals and to assist the fatherless children and widows of the war dead."

"Poppy Week should be one of solemn remembrance for all of us in the Village of Saugerties, keeping in mind always those courageous souls who laid down their lives in order that we may live in peace and prosperity," the Mayor added. "It constitutes a debt which we can never pay—but all of us can, in a small way, show our appreciation by wearing the bright scarlet blossom remembrance during Poppy Week."

"Therefore, I hereby declare the week of May 22-29, 1972 as POPPY WEEK in the Village of Saugerties and urge all of our citizens to join in this worthwhile observance by wearing the memorial flower," the Mayor stated.

Handcraft Club Plans June 1 Gathering

SAUGERTIES Plans were made at a recent meeting of the Saugerties Handcraft Club for the June 1 luncheon and election of officers to be held at the Bon Fire Restaurant at 1 p.m.

Fresh Air Children Arrival Set

SAUGERTIES The bus load of Fresh Air children from New York City will arrive in Saugerties on July 18. The underprivileged children will stay till Aug. 1, if enough host families from the Saugerties, Lake Katrine, Kingston area can be found.

"What is a host family? They are the 'greatest' people in the world! A family who opens its heart and the door of its home to a strange little girl or boy for just two weeks out of the summer and shares their life with this child so that the child in turn might have the time of his life," according to Pat Kramer of Saugerties.

"We ask you to provide a bed for him and open arms and heart for the two week stay. Nothing else, these kids don't want anything more than to enjoy the green grass, a flower, a baby bird, the clean air, the amazing flying lights at dusk (a firefly to us), and the friendly people who are helping to break down the barriers of race, creed and social status and have invited him into their home."

"They don't need to be wined and dined because just being here is more than enough. Asked what he liked best about his Fresh Air Vacation last year a little nine-year old boy replied, 'The eatin' and the runnin'.'"

Give these children something more than the concrete and steel of New York's Inner-City and they will give you rewards you never dreamed possible," Mrs. Kramer said.

For more information call Peg Cummins, Barbara Sperl, Bertie Gilpin in Saugerties or Gail Goffredi in Kingston.

Flower Show Scheduled

SAUGERTIES A treasure trove of floral beauty will be in store for those attending the Saugerties Society of Little Garden's 48th annual Standard Flower Show.

This year's theme will be "A Treasury of Thoughts in Bloom." Reflections, ideas and concepts related to floral arranging will be very much in evidence at the United Methodist Church on Washington Avenue in Saugerties on June 14 from 2:30 to 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Hugo Knauer and Mrs. Frank Greco are Chairman and Co-chairman respectively.

Fish Reports on Soviet Jewry

By LYNN MULVANEY

POUGHKEEPSIE

The United States' efforts on behalf of the Soviet Jews emigrating from Russia to Israel daily has been satisfactory, Congressman Hamilton Fish concluded Tuesday on his return from Geneva, Switzerland. Fish was the official congressional advisor at the 41st session of the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.

Fish also said he was struck by the fact that "anti-American feeling seems to have bitten deepest in our own country." He found the Soviet Jewish emigrés most friendly to him.

Speaking to a group at Temple Beth El in Poughkeepsie, Rep. Fish told of the plight of the Soviet Jews and his visit to Schoenau in Vienna, Austria, an old castle or hunting lodge now used as a transfer point by the thousands of Russian emigrés on their way from the Soviet Union to a new home in Israel. Fish said that Vienna is only two hours by jet from Moscow and only 50 kilometers from the Czech border and consequently there is "no indication of the suffering, unkempt refugee made familiar during and following World War II."

"Emigrés are neatly dressed and number about 250 daily. They are clean, freshly shaven and alert and that fully 50 per cent are professionals," according to Fish.

"Emigration is only permitted to those in Russia who have relatives in Israel. The relatives in Israel must request release of immediate family members. The emigrés do not arrive

Ellenville Budget... Little Progress

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE for board consideration by next Tuesday, but some members of the board appeared to be against the move.

Board members Eugene Houck and Frederick VanKeuran said they were opposed to any budget cuts. Board member Donald Berg said he favored adopting an austerity budget with propositions, and Houck made, and later withdrew, a motion to that effect.

Superintendent of Schools Thomas J. Hayden called for unity among board members several times during the meeting Tuesday, but the board appeared to be more divided at the end of the two-hour session than when it began.

School Board President James J. Murray requested Hayden to come up with a cut-down budget to determine where the cuts could be made with the least harm.

Board member Jack Siegel, who opposed the original budget, gave the board a list of about $70,000 worth of cuts he felt should be made at its last budget meeting, and said at the time he would favor a budget that had his cuts in it.

Shore and Wolff agreed on the manner of getting the cuts in the budget made, but did not agree on how much should be cut. Wolff favored a 2 per cent slash, and Shore about 3 per cent.

Siegel said at the last meeting his cuts would have to be in his calculations there would be no more than a $10,000 balance for next summer. This means borrowing, and

Hayden said the district would probably have to resort to it by "the middle of the summer."

Wolff said the district ought to put the money into the budget as a planned item, and Murray suggested calling it something like "summer expenditures," so people would realize it was not just leftover money.

The board approved the idea. It will affect the tax rate until the full amount needed is built up. The rule of thumb in the Ellenville district is the tax rate goes up $6 for every $100,000 the school budget increases.

That means the $50,000 planned balance would cost about $3 per thousand assessed valuation, but some borrowing expenses would be eliminated.

Hayden's job of cutting down the budget was made more difficult by a board action which added $50,000 to the budget. The Ellenville district has depended, in the past, on the surplus in the budget to get it through the summer months until tax time.

The district needs about $140,000 for the period, according to Business Manager Sol Sashin, and this year only has about $80,000. Hayden said because the district was on austerity this year the anticipated balance had been pared down, and according to his calculations there would be no more than a $10,000 balance for next summer. This means borrowing, and

Postal Picket Slated

KINGSTON
Postal employees throughout the United States—but not in Kingston—will picket postal installations this week to dramatize their demands that Congress "give us political rights the equal of those enjoyed by workers in private industry; namely, the right to strike and the right to participate in political action."

The American Postal Workers Union, AFL-CIO, said, "Service to the public is only one casualty of postal management's continuing failure to bargain in good faith." The picketing this week will culminate with a mass rally of postal workers this weekend in Washington, D.C.

Leo Schupp, president of the Kingston local, said, "At a special meeting called locally, it was voted unanimously to withhold picketing in deference to local management under Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk, with whom the local employees feel they have no grievance."

Service Test Is Scheduled

Jobs' Affect Noted

KINGSTON
Earnings from summer jobs can affect the monthly payments of students and other young people who get benefits from social security, according to George J. Habernig Jr., social security district manager in Kingston.

He noted that nearly 3,000 young people under 22 in Ulster County get monthly social security payments as children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers, and many of them will work during summer vacation. The amount earned at summer and parttime jobs will cause a reduction in social security payments if their total earnings for the year are more than $1,680, but they still can get their payment for any month in which they neither earn more than $140 nor perform substantial services in self-employment.

The amount deducted is $1 in social security for each $2 over $1,680 and less than $2,880 earned. For every $1 earned over $2,880, $1 in social security payments is withheld.

Habernig advocated notifying social security as soon as possible if the person knows his earnings will top $1,680. "Refunding overpayments to social security at the end of the year can sometimes create a financial hardship," he said. Any questions regarding social security may be answered at the 57 Albany Avenue office, 338-7307.

Student Is Ready For Flight

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP) — The imitation of birds in flight is an ancient dream of man, and a young college student here soon hopes to add his name to the list of those who have challenged the law of gravity with brute strength.

Jeffrie Davie of Willowdale, Ont., a junior at Clarkson College of Technology, has begun work on a vehicle he believes may help him fly.

The 21-year-old Canadian developed interest in man-powered flight as a high school student, when he read about attempts to soar over the English Channel in primitive contraptions during the pioneer days of flight.

This year Davie and a few Clarkson co-helpers have designed what they hope will be a successful vehicle to propel a man upward, using his own muscle.

The challenge of being the first to develop a man-powered craft that will take to the air for an extended period of time was the motivating force for Davie. Along the way, however, he learned of the $26,000 Kremer Prize.

This prize—posted in 1959 by a British businessman and the Royal Aeronautical Society of Britain—has had many hopefuls but no winners. Among other feats, it requires a man-powered device to fly a half-mile figure-eight course with end pylons that must be rounded at an altitude of at least 10 feet.

To achieve this, Davie designed—with the help of computers—a glider-like plane with two prominent propellers driven by a bicycle pedal-mechanism.

When built, craft and pilot are programmed to weigh 270 lbs. Perched beneath the 42-foot wing span, the pilot must peddle to generate enough thrust to lift the plane skywards.

Davie is confident of success—despite a rather thick, though colorful, history book of failures and energetic worldwide competition resulting from recent publicity of the Kremer Cup.

An indication of this confidence is Davie's desire to fly his own invention in the Kremer competition—providing he meets the physical requirements that are being developed by two other Clarkson students involved in the project.

These students are constructing a device to measure the human energy output needed to power the plane. Their research thus far shows that the pilot may well have to be endowed with the stamina and physique of a long-distance runner, they say.

Flyers in past Kremer Cup attempts have been helped—dead-tired—from their aircraft or rescued from a body of water near the course, after hardly scratching the standards of the competition.

Davie, a mechanical engineering major, hopes to test-fly the plane in mid-summer, "if all goes well."

"Challenging things have always had a fascination for me," Davie says, adding that one of his future dreams is to design and build a bicycle that will whirl along at 100 m.p.h.

Seemingly simpler than moon missions and planetary probes, man-powered flight remains among man's unfulfilled ambitions "at least until this summer," says Davie hopefully.

General Praises Students

NORTHFIELD, Vt. (AP) —poraries at other colleges were The nation's top soldier, Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland, gave praise and a mandate of responsibility to graduates of the nation's oldest private military academy today.

In remarks prepared for delivery at the 153rd commencement ceremonies at Norwich University in Northfield, Vt., Westmoreland told the 206 graduates that they deserve great credit for their dedication.

"While many of your contemporaries at other colleges were 'copping out,' evading the draft and fleeing to Canada, while many who stayed sought the easier path—not to study but to destroy and disrupt—you worked for an education and bore the taunts many of us bear who wear the uniform today."

He told his audience, which included 101 newly commissioned officers, that "it is unfortunate but true that the ROTC, its programs and facilities, have in recent years been a lightning rod, a proxy target, for campus dissent."

"In the name of peace and harmony its buildings have been burned, its classrooms destroyed, its drills interrupted," he said.

"There is no doubt that those bent on destruction or removal of the ROTC from our campuses misunderstand its true contribution to American university education. In their efforts to show their dissatisfaction with U. S. Foreign policy, ROTC has provided them with a convenient scapegoat," Westmoreland said.

The Army Chief of Staff made no mention of recent events in American foreign policy nor any direct reference to the war in Vietnam.

Instead, he directed much of his prepared remarks to the reinforcement of the Reserve Officer Training Corps program as an integral part of liberal education.

"In recent years," he continued, "some have said that a liberal education in a military environment is an impossible contradiction in terms."

"I emphatically deny this. The education you have received here has been built on self-imposed restraints and the development of essential self-discipline. It would be a mistake to believe that education would ever seek to bind the mind or fetter the free spirit of a cademic inquiry," Westmoreland said.

"The discipline you have learned at Norwich," he told the new graduates, "is precious in an age in which there are loud calls by some for an education in irrationalism."

In a portion of his speech directed at the men who became officers this morning, Westmoreland urged them to "exemplify in thought and deed... the ideals of superior performance of mission, of care of your men, of loyalty to those men, of loyalty to your superiors, of courage of your convictions, of knowledge of your job, your unit and the issues of war and peace which affect the nation and the world..."

He told them that "the military ethic of this nation is an ethic of service to democracy."

Westmoreland's address was expected to be one of his last speeches before the end of his tour as chief of staff on July 3. In 1969 he helped Norwich University celebrate its 150th anniversary by delivering the main address at a military convocation.

Westmoreland left Washington late Saturday morning to participate in the Norwich ceremonies, and was expected to depart immediately afterward to attend a function in New Hampshire.

The scheduled guest speaker during commissioning ceremonies at Norwich was Lt. Gen. George I. Forsyth, special assistant to the chief of staff for the volunteer army.

Honorary degrees were to be conferred upon retiring Norwich University President Gen. Barksdale Hamlett and Dr. Robert W. Christie of Lancaster, N.H., an alumni trustee of the university.

General Hamlett, the school's 20th president, is to retire on May 31 after leading Norwich for the past seven years.

Ulster County Parking Lot... Termed 'Successful Operation'

KINGSTON
More than $5,000 in receipts has been realized in the three months the county-owned parking lot behind the Court House has been in operation. Prior to its reconstruction and the installation of automatic parking devices, receipts from the metered lot were steadily declining to a low of $4,000 in 1971.

"The new operation of the lot is living up to expectations, helping the uptown shopper, pleasing businessmen and making a profit as well," said County Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist. 2), who introduced the proposal to the Legislature on recommendation of the Ulster County Parking Agency.

Under the new operation, about 2,000 cars a week are using the lot on a 10-cent an hour basis. The first week it opened in February it was used by 1,291 cars and during the week of May 8, 2,188 vehicles parked there.

The average receipt is 22 cents, Elmendorf said, adding that parking lot attendants have been receiving very favorable comment with a number of persons commenting that they expected to be charged more.

Presently, the lot, which has 125 spaces, is taking in about $440 a week and has a monthly payroll of $502.

Members of the Parking Authority include George Schneider, chairman; Anthony Pizzarelli, secretary; Clifford Bunting, Robert Meeker, Richard Fredenberg, Archie Wildblood, Peter Weider and Elmendorf who serves in an ex-officio capacity.

Rhinebeck Choral Club Slates Spring Concert

RHINEBECK
The Rhinebeck Choral Club, a 27-year-old institution of community endeavor, will present its Spring Concert June 2, according to Director Ronald Heck.

Because of standing-room-only crowds of past performances at the Town Hall, this year's concert entitled "Kaleidoscope" will be held at the Rhinebeck High School auditorium.

The program will present songs from yesterday and today. The theme song "Superstar" from the rock opera will be sung with instrumental accompaniment as well as the lilting "I Don't Know How to Love Him" from the same source.

For Broadway lovers there will be several selections from Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel," including such favorites as "June Is Bustin' Out All Over"; "If I Loved You"; "A Real Nice Clambake"; and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

From West Side Story come "Tonight"; "One Hand, One Heart"; "Maria"; and "America." And "Almost Like Being in Love," from "Brigadoon" will bring back memories for many.

Some different musical accompaniment and a few solos will add dimension to the evening's sound, with many more songs.

And, following the concert, the Rhinebeck Choral Club will sponsor a buffet dinner-dance at the village hall firehouse. Providing the music will be the C-Notes, well known area seven piece band.

Information on tickets for the Choral Club concert may be obtained from Ann Jeck or Mel Dapson in Rhinebeck, as well as tickets for the dinner-dance to follow.

Evans Products Sees Good Year

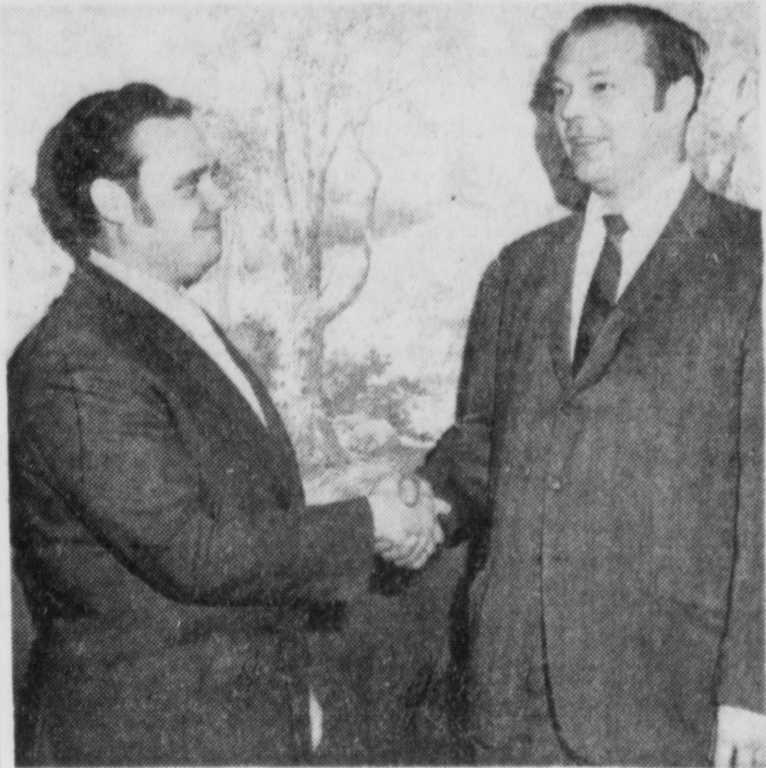

PORTLAND, ORE.

Evans Products Company sees increased earnings.

Evans Products Company's revenues and earnings for the first four months were better than planned, Monford A. Orloff, chairman and chief executive officer of the company, told the annual meeting of shareholders here today. Orloff said that if building starts for the year continue at the currently forecasted annual rate and if lumber and plywood prices remain near current levels, the company will do better than its previously forecasted 20 per cent increase in primary net earnings per common share. He pointed to current high levels of housing activity and said that the prices of basic building materials were firm at profitable levels.

Last year Evans reported primary net earnings of $1.23 per share on record revenues of $726 million. In the first quarter, the major building products producer and distributor reported revenues of $180 million, up 33 per cent, and net earnings of $3.2 million, up 49 per cent from first quarter 1971 results. First quarter primary net earnings were 19 cents per common share.

Orloff cautioned that international and domestic political events could unpredictably affect the housing market. However, he pointed out that last year more than half of the operating earnings of the company's four operating groups came from its retail and homes groups which had shown consistent increases in revenues and operating earnings irrespective of fluctuations in the construction cycle.

Sheik Seeks to Protect Remaining Desert Unicorns

AL ZUBARAH, Qatar (AP)—On a hunting expedition in the sandy nothingness of Rub al Khali—Saudi Arabia's "Empty Quarter"—Sheik Qasim Bin Hamad wept when a rare white Arabian oryx in a caravan of hunting parties diving charge deftly skinned the right front tire of his jeep with its long, corkscrew horns. There and then, the remorseless hunter turned dedicated conservationist and set about preserving one of nature's largest and loveliest animals. That was seven years ago. It already may have been too late.

The sheik, who is Qatar's minister of education has had occasion to weep again for the elegant, long-pronged member of the antelope family that roams the deserts of the Arabian Peninsula. An epidemic of pleural pneumonia wiped out eight of the 35 white Arabian oryxes in the herd the sheik had built up as the largest and one of the last in captivity. Two more males died the same week in a butting contest over the affections of a female, a common end for the love-crazed critters whose horns have long been in demand in the Arab world as aphrodisiacs.

It has been at least four years now since any Bedouin camel caravans or hunting parties came across any of the huge milk white hoofed animals in the vast desert just beyond the borders of Qatar, a new nation jutting into the Persian Gulf.

The species is virtually extinct in the wild. Along with the 29 white Arabian oryxes at the Phoenix, Ariz., Zoo, the surviving herd at the sheik's ranch, 90 miles from the capital at Doha, may be the sole survivors anywhere in the world.

When we visited the ranch, his private secretary, Ghazi Az-Zeh, showed us around.

"Please, scrub your boots," he requested as we approached the oryx corral, indicating a long brush and a trough of strong disinfectant solution. "In the desert, they are very shy. In the desert, they are brave and extremely difficult to capture. They are most sensitive animals. Sometimes at the mere smell of man, they begin to vomit and die."

Large as cows, with the same slow, sad eyes, the pale white animals with the dark blaze down their snouts and the fine, erect, rapier-like horns herded together in the middle of the open, sandy pen. Some of the calves, pinkish-buff and without horns, shied a bit and galloped nervously toward the shed against the far wall when a photographer moved amongst them. The adults impassively stood their ground. Two females, still recovering from the bout with pneumonia, slumped in the shade of the wall; a male with a broken leg limped about nearby.

The education minister, a brother of Qatar's prime minister, now devotes much of his personal fortune to preserving desert wild life.

"Sheik Hamad," his secretary said, "receives many requests for the white Arabian oryx from zoos and preservation societies all over the world, but he turns them all down. He feels the species would have little chance of surviving outside a desert environment."

After his conversion by a punctured jeep tire in 1964, Sheik Hamid captured a number of live oryxes but only three lived long enough to reach his ranch in Qatar. The next year he added two more, and the tiny herd began breeding. Until the outbreak of pneumonia, he was averaging eight to 10 calves a year, losing several males from the inevitable love quarrels but still retaining two of the original oryxes.

The sheik belongs to and keeps in contact with most wild life and fauna preservation societies around the world, and often leaves his ornate palace in Doha for trips into Rub Al Khali, hoping to find new ways of keeping alive his rare, long perhaps it is its old foe, man, horned herd. Proud as he is of who is bringing the germs that showing them off, he may soon threatened the herd this time, close the ranch to all outside visitors. It is sad, because now after years, centuries no doubt, of "A survival expert in England," the secretary said, "suggested in a recent letter that lions."

Mets Streak Ends at 11

Tug Shrugs It Off; Not End of World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It's a loss—but not the end of the world," Tug McGraw of the New York Mets shrugged. "The law of averages didn't get me. They got me."

They were the Chicago Cubs and they got McGraw for a run in the eighth inning. That snapped a tie, giving the Cubs a 2-1 victory, and snapped the Mets back to reality.

It was their first loss in a dozen games, their second in the last 16 and only the ninth in the 33 games they've played this season.

In other National League action Tuesday, Pittsburgh blitzed St. Louis 6-2. Montreal flipped Philadelphia 6-2. Atlanta edged Cincinnati 2-1. Los Angeles topped San Francisco 8-5, and in a two-night doubleheader, Houston swept San Diego 7-0 and 2-1.

The Cubs nicked New York starter Gary Gentry for a run in the fourth inning on a walk and singles by Paul Popovich and Ken Rudolph but the Mets, unable to handle Ferguson Jenkins' pitching for six innings, finally tied it in the seventh on a walk and singles by Tommie Agee and Rusty Staub.

Then came the eighth. Carmen Fanzone started the winning rally with a one-out single. And when Popovich slammed a McGraw offering to right center field, Fanzone was off and running.

Staub, the right fielder, and Agee, coming over from center, converged on the liner and Staub made a lunging stab at the ball as it bounced up and toward the wall. Then he made a desperation play. Had it worked, it might have cut down Fanzone steaming for the plate. But not likely.

Staub, racing away from the infield and in no position to throw, flipped the ball at Agee as the center fielder sped by, hoping Agee might be able to gun it home. Agee wasn't prepared for it and the ball sailed over his head.

Despite the loss, the Mets still hold a healthy five-game lead over second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

"It's a joy pitching for this ball club," Pittsburgh's Steve Blass said after the Bucs reeled off their eighth consecutive victory by capitalizing on St. Louis errors for a pair of three-run innings.

"You know they're going to score and they make the plays behind you," Blass said following his fifth victory. "You can't ask for more than that."

Gene Alley, Dave Cash and Vic Davalillo singled in second-inning runs after Cards' shortstop Ed Crosby opened the gates by booting Manny Sanguillen's grounder. In the fourth, Blass and Cash scored as both second baseman Ted Sizemore and right fielder Luis Melendez misplayed Davalillo's bouncer. Robert Clemente singled home the final run.

While St. Louis was losing its 10th game in the last 12, the Phillies were losing their eighth in a row, thanks to the hot bats of the Expos' Mike Jorgensen and Ron Fairly and the cool hurling of Bill Stoneman.

Jorgensen drove in three runs, two of them with his fifth home run of the year and Fairly socked a solo homer and singled home another run. Stoneman went all the way, scattering seven hits and chalking up six strikeouts.

Phil Niekro spun a six-hitter for the Reds and helped his own cause with a third-inning home run, the sixth of his career, to offset a first-inning run by the Braves on Joe Morgan's single.

But it was Marty Perez who boosted Niekro to his sixth victory, snapping the tie with an eighth-inning double that followed hits by Dusty Baker and Darrell Evans.

The Dodgers didn't take their victory so much as San Francisco gave it to them. The Giants committed five errors and Don Carriethers uncorked three wild pitches. But Los Angeles did some scoring on its own, with Frank Robinson contributing a healthy share on a pair of home runs. Undefeated Don Sutton picked up victory No. 6.

Bob Watson was the big gun in the sweep that enabled the Astros to widen their National League West lead over the Dodgers to 1½ games.

In the opener he hit a homer and a double. Then in the nightcap he homered again and, in the sixth inning, singled and eventually scored the winning run on Tommy Helms' single.

OUT AT FIRST—New York Mets' Tommie Agee is out at first on a close play as a slow grounder he hit was fielded by Cubs' shortstop Paul Popovich who made a low throw to Cubs' first baseman Jim Hickman who was able to make pickup. Umpire Lee Weyer calls the play Tuesday during 4th inning action. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Perry Zips Yanks

By United Press International

Bobby Murcer thinks Gaylord Perry is a "disgrace," but the Cleveland Indians consider him a blessing.

Perry, a 33-year-old right-hander who came to the Indians from the San Francisco Giants in exchange for pitcher Sam McDowell last winter, stopped the New York Yankees on four hits Tuesday night to notch his sixth straight triumph and eighth in 10 decisions as the Indians scored a 3-0 victory.

But Murcer, who plays centerfield for the Yankees and is considered the team's leading hitter, wasn't at all happy at the way Perry fashioned the shutout. It was the Yankees' first look at the lanky right-hander and they joined the long list of opponents who have complained bitterly about Perry's pitching.

Perry, who spent 10 seasons with the Giants and won 34 games in the National League, seldom pitched a game that he wasn't charged with throwing an illegal pitch. A switch to a new league hasn't changed anything, either. In his last start, against Detroit, Tigers' Manager Billy Martin protested vehemently about Perry's pitching and while the Yankees offered no formal protest to the 21, Boston nipped Baltimore 6-5 umpires Tuesday night, they echoed the sentiments of other Perry victims.

"It's a disgrace to baseball," said Murcer, who failed to get a hit in four at bats against the Indians' ace. "He's putting something like vaseline or baby oil on the ball. I felt it."

Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees agreed with Murcer that Perry was doctoring the ball, but he said he offered no complaint to the umpire since he felt any objection would play right into Perry's hands psychologically.

"I know he's doing something with the ball, but if you start getting your hitters looking for that pitch, they'll be whipped before they start," said Houk. "He wants you to moan."

Perry, despite the many protests, has succeeded in pitching the Indians into first place in the AL East. Tuesday night's victory was the Indians' 18th against 10 losses and they lead second place Detroit by 2½ games.

In other AL action Tuesday night, Milwaukee blanked Detroit 3-0, Chicago edged Texas

Upstate Legislators Outraged

Greenberg Raps Roosevelt OTB

MONTICELLO — A deal brewing between Roosevelt Raceway and Off Track Betting Corp. that would permit live television from the Westbury track?

According to Monticello Raceway president, Leon Greenberg, the answer is a resounding yes. New York City, in total defiance of the recent Court of Appeals decision upholding the New York State Harness Racing Commission's current ban on television, has approached Madison Square Garden, owner of Roosevelt Raceway, regarding the possibility of broadcasting live from the track while the meet at Monticello is in progress.

"This is nothing more than a unilateral effort on the part of Madison Square Garden to benefit themselves to the total detriment of the industry in the state," said Greenberg.

The Court of Appeals decision, which came about when OTB attempted to televise from Monticello this summer, prohibits the telecasting of racing events as "being deleterious to the racing industry when in conflict with other tracks in operation."

"This is something that has to be nipped in the bud," Greenberg fumed. "Mayor Lindsay has absolutely no right proposing the televising of harness racing from the metropolitan tracks in defiance of the current law where it will injure any facet of racing. If it did no harm to any other track, I would have no objections. I believe our winter meet was a prime example benefiting everyone."

When notified of the proposed Roosevelt-OTB television agreement, Assemblyman Benjamin Gilman, R-Middletown, claimed that Lindsay's decision to proceed is "a complete disregard for not only the court's edict, but the commission's attempt to provide a moratorium period, so that the legislature and the administration could properly study this problem."

"Apparently," the assemblyman went on, "Mayor Lindsay is placing himself above the courts, above the legislature and above the state administration in unilaterally deciding to proceed, despite these rules and requests."

Assemblyman Clark Bell of Woodstock was particularly upset with the New York mayor.

"Last year when the upstate tracks were opposed to televising, Mayor Lindsay and his supporters violently fought against the upstate interests," said Bell. "Now, one year later, and with the passage of the (television) moratorium, Lindsay does a 180-degree turn-about. This makes his credibility so suspect that almost anything he says he cannot be accepted as factual."

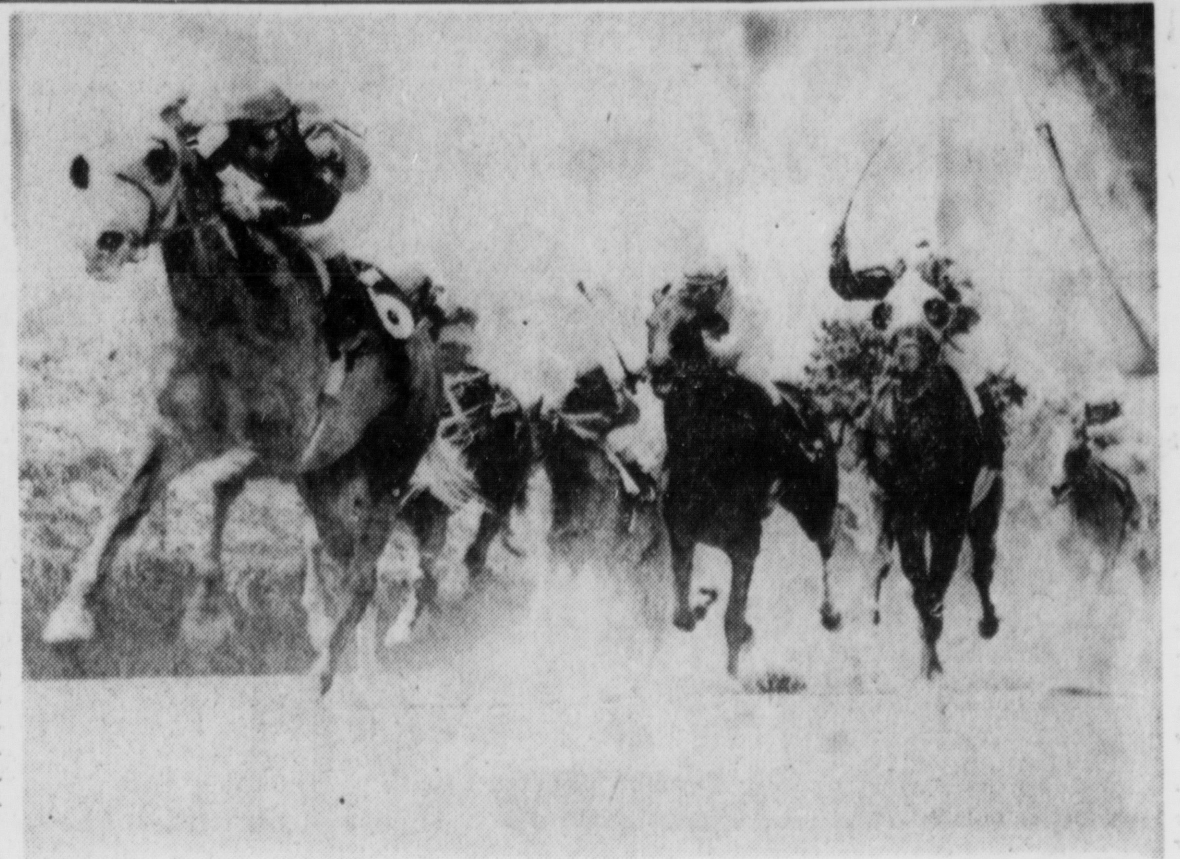

"I intend to speak to my fellow legislators in the upstate area," Bell continued, "to oppose this last incident of outrage by Mayor Lindsay. The moratorium was designed for equality of treatment and I believe that Mayor Lindsay not only violated the letter of the law, but also the spirit and intent of the law. His integrity has hit rock bottom."

Assemblyman Edwyn Mason of Delaware County called the announcement by Howard Samuels and Roosevelt Raceway "an absolute disgrace."

Roosevelt Raceway president, George Morton Levy, one of the pioneers of the industry in New York, said he was convinced OTB will be "injurious" to racing over the long run, but approved the contract "as a meaningful test of whether television would help or hurt attendance at the track."

New York City OTB chief Howard J. Samuels reiterated his stand that TV "will give a major boost to racing, just as it has done for football and baseball."

Baylor, pausing briefly to answer a question on his feelings about a merger, said he did not favor a consolidation of the two leagues because each league at present has several weak clubs.

Pro Cagers Defy Leagues

NEW YORK (UPI)—National and American Basketball Association players went ahead with plans for Thursday night's second annual All-Star game without official sanctions from either league.

The first game, played in Houston's Astrodome last year, also was staged without approval from the league clubs, but the NBA's one-point victory generated enough excitement to induce the Players Association of each league to make the All-Star contest an annual event.

Eleven players from each league will suit up for the game at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y., that will be played for the benefit of three charitable organizations, including Phoenix House, an outfit that helps addicts overcome their drug habits.

Stan Love of Chicago, Spencer Haywood of Seattle, John Havlicek of Boston and Dave DeBusschere of New York are the NBA All-Star forwards. Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles and Bob Lanier of Detroit were picked by their fellow players as centers. The guard posts will be handled by Jerry West of Los Angeles, Oscar Robertson of Milwaukee, Walt Frazier of New York, Archie Clark of Baltimore and Nate Archibald of Cincinnati.

The ABA cast includes forwards Willie Wise of Utah, Julius Erving of Virginia, Dan Issel of Kentucky and Rick Barry of New York. Artis Gilmore of Kentucky, returning from Holland for the game, and Mel Daniels of Indiana are the big men.

Roger Brown of Indiana, Ralph Simpson of Denver, Donnie Freeman of Dallas, George Thompson of Pittsburgh and Jimmy Jones of Utah fill out the guard positions.

"There's enough talent here to fill every arena in each league every night of the season," said Al Bianchi, coach of the Virginia Squires and ABA coach for the game, at a luncheon Tuesday honoring the All-Stars. "The fact that Gilmore is returning from Europe shows the keen interest the players have in this game."

Bianchi said the ABA "has lots of good players and if the coach doesn't mess things up, I think we can win."

Wise remembered last year's game when Frazier came down the lane for two late baskets in the NBA victory.

"You never saw a guy smile like that," Wise said of Frazier. "He was grinning from ear to ear after each bucket. You just have to know it was important to him."

Elgin Baylor, former Laker star who retired prior to Los Angeles' first championship season, is coaching the NBA players.

"I really don't know why I was picked to coach the team," Baylor admitted. "I trust the players wanted me to coach them."

Baylor, who does promotion work for the Lakers and is a color commentator for televised NCAA college basketball games, said he would start the players voted as the NBA's first team All-Stars this season.

"You always start with the best you have and then fill in," Baylor explained. "But with a bench like we have, anybody could be a starter and anyone a sitter."

Baylor, pausing briefly to answer a question on his feelings about a merger, said he did not favor a consolidation of the two leagues because each league at present has several weak clubs.

KINGSTON — Mrs. William D. (Chris) Harris defeated Mrs. Clifford (Arlene) Spiesman, 3-0, in the key match of the day, but Wiltwyck Country Club women scrambled back to defeat host Twaalfskill by one point, 18½-17½, in an inter-club match Tuesday at The Twaalfskill Club.

Mrs. Arthur Motzkin won over Mrs. Emilio Gropuso, 3-0, in another key match. Mrs. Arthur Hoffman of Twaalfskill posted a 3-0 win over Mrs. Frank Murray.

Other three-point winners for Wiltwyck were: Mrs. June Van Kleeck, Mrs. Joe White, Mrs. M. Richard Davenport and Mrs. Gerald (Boots) Overbagh.

The results:

Mrs. June Van Kleeck (W) defeated Mrs. William Pugliese, 3-0; Mrs. Bernard Feeney (T) over Mrs. Gerald Gruber, 3-0; Mrs. Harris over Mrs. Spiesman, 3-0; Mrs. Motzkin over Mrs. Gropuso, 3-0; Mrs. Robert Avery (T) over Mrs. Robert O. Merritt, 3-0.

Lee and Nick File Early For British Open Event

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI)—Entries for the July 12-15 British Open golf championship at Muirfield, Scotland, have been received from 21 countries, the Royal and Ancient Club announced Tuesday.

The United States with 24 challengers tops the foreign entry with three weeks to go to the closing date of June 12.

Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus, winners the past two years, were among the early entries along with most of the other top names of world golf.

Taiwan's Liang Huan Lu and flamboyant American Doug Sanders, the men who finished second behind Trevino and Nicklaus respectively, are in the latest list of players exempt from the qualifying rounds.

Other entries in the exempt category include Spaniards Angel Gallardo and Ramon Sota, Ben Arda of the Philippines, Australian Graham Marsh and Walter Godfrey of New Zealand.

Among those who have entered for the qualifying rounds are Aussie Bruce Devlin, recent winner of the $44,721 Houston Open and 1965 American PGA championship winner Dave Marr.

Redskins Fined $5,000 For Draft Violations

NEW YORK (UPI)—National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle fined the Washington Redskins $5,000 Tuesday and lashed into coach George Allen for trading the same draft choices twice.

The unprecedented levy was the highest Rozelle could post against the 'Skins for an infraction and marked the first time the NFL chief had reprimanded a coach before the league's executive council.

Allen, who made an estimated 19 deals during his first year as Washington coach, gave up his third and fourth draft choices for 1973 to the Buffalo Bills in exchange for Ron McDole. The Redskins later used these same draft choices to make a deal with the San Diego Chargers for Speedy Duncan.

In censuring Allen for his dealings, Rozelle also revealed that Washington had traded its top 1972 choice and its second pick for 1973 to the New York Jets for Verlon Biggs. Later, the No. 2 choice went to the Los Angeles Rams for Richie Allen's dealings during a routine check of records after the 1971 season.

Dedrick's Pull Triple Play

Freeman Softies Need Toughening

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

KINGSTON The 1972 edition of The Daily Freeman softball team made its City Slow Pitch League debut Monday night and, to put it mildly, failed to come up to the high standards expected of them by their fellow co-workers. Like the old Broadway legend—it did not open and close in one. It will persevere.

By the time our boys got their first licks, the Alpine squad had already racked up seven runs en route to a decisive 19-4 victory. The Freeman scored four runs off Roger Brandt in the first inning, but the Alpine pitcher closed shop for the rest of the way.

The Freeman infield committed four errors in the first inning, tempting Reynolds to sue for non-support. With the score 12-4, the author of the City Hall Beat column vacated the premises in favor of Harold Miller, who was promptly shelved for seven runs in the fifth inning. The game was then terminated by the 13-run rule.

Jon Powers, the Nellie Fox of The Freeman infield, collected two hits in three trips. George Zeeh stroked a single and triple. Bill McCaffery slammed three hits for Alpine.

Freeman Manager Bill German viewed the first game's shambles somewhat philosophically. "Seven is tough to beat," he quipped, "and they came up with two. We need more work. I'm confident that with strong pitching, good hitting and a tight defense we can win the B Division pennant."

Elsewhere in the B Division, Rotron edged Shamrock, 14-11; Dedrick's nipped Rite Cleaners 4-3 behind Ron Keyser; Andy Lord of Road Runners six-hit Hurley Store, 11-2; and Terpening's routed Rolling Acres, 14-8.

Ralph Temple stroked a double and three singles for Road Runners. David Rask had a double and two singles and Lord helped his own cause with three singles. Ron Cole's four singles and Bo Vitarius' triple and three singletons lead Terpening's 22-hit barrage against Rolling Acres. Terpening helped himself with a single, double and triple; Bill Scully tripled and had two singles and Rusty Zehnack added three singles. Don Patton homered and Marc Reuben had a double and two singles for the Acres.

Norm Gadzinski's double and three singles and a pair of triples by Bob Kaiser highlighted Rotron's 22 hits against Shamrock. Steve Mercer (double) and Dick Hajec added three hits. Bob Short collected four singles and Tony Ruggieri and Rich Martine added three hits apiece. Dedrick's embellished their

4-3 win over Rite Cleaners with a rare softball triple play. With runners on first and second and none out, Ed Parker flied to Joe Darwak in center, Darwak threw to third where Ken Whitney tagged Mike Lucas for the second out, then fired to second baseman Bill Sheeley who tagged John Walther for the third out.

Cadet Coach Speaks Here

KINGSTON

LeRoy Alitz, varsity wrestling coach at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, will be the guest speaker at the 13th annual Kingston High School Athletic Awards Banquet.

Athletic Director William J. (Bill) Hurley has announced. The dinner is scheduled Wednesday, June 7 at the Governor Clinton Hotel. This year the event is being sponsored by the KHS Interact Club in conjunction with the Kingston Rotary Club, Hurley said.

More than 200 boys and girls will be honored. Most Valuable Player and Coach's Award trophies will be presented to selected individuals on each squad, two trophies per team. In addition, the Russ Cunningham Outstanding Lineman Award will be presented by Vince DeLuca. The Rotary Club will present a Scholar-Athlete Award.

Coach Alitz has completed his 18th season at the helm of Army wrestling fortunes this year and has passed the 100th mark in wins this season. During the past 18 seasons, Alitz' Army teams have won 109 wrestling meets, lost 76 and tied 12 times.

In perhaps the culmination of a brilliant coaching career, the 52-year-old Army coach was elected president of the NCAA second.

LEROY ALITZ

Wrestling Coaches Association in 1968. He is currently chairman of the NCAA Rules Committee.

One of Alitz' finest wrestling teams was the 1964-65 squad which won 9, lost only 2 and tied one. This year's squad surpassed that victory total with 13 wins, 9 losses and one tie. The 1968-69 Army squad turned in the best finishing performance in the Easterns during Alitz' tenure, finishing

Speedy Rick Home First

Quick-closing Speedy Rick scored a half length win over veteran campaigner Seymour J. in Monticello's Tuesday night featured trot. Clint Galbraith moving him from dead last in the eight horse field at the half into contention by sweeping three wide in the backstretch, catching Seymour J. at the head of the stretch and eking out his win in a good duel to the wire. Harlan Marv moved up to take third. The 2:05.1 clocking was the fastest trot of the season with Speedy Rick returning backers $3.60, $3.40 and $3.00.

Female driver Bobbe Erdman who is part owner and trainer of Seymour J., zoomed her eight-year-old gelding to the top around the first turn and tried to hold on. It was Seymour J.'s first start of the year at Monticello with three earlier starts at Vernon Downs. Two years ago Seymour went in 1:59.1 at Vernon.

An accident marred the third race, unseating two drivers, moving him from dead last in the eight horse field at the half into contention by sweeping three wide in the backstretch, catching Seymour J. at the head of the stretch and eking out his win in a good duel to the wire. Harlan Marv moved up to take third. The 2:05.1 clocking was the fastest trot of the season with Speedy Rick returning backers $3.60, $3.40 and $3.00.

Help Wanted—Male & Female

University Building, Department Store

Pat Visits Immovable Objects

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow's most irresistible new force—Mrs. Richard Nixon—today took on two of the Russian capital's most immovable objects.

The First Lady, her phalanx of 30 bodyguards, and a swarming entourage of reporters had the 32-story Moscow University building and the massive stone GUM department store on their schedule.

Mrs. Nixon was a smiling, spunky survivor of a Tuesday tour that turned a secondary school and a subway ride into rough, raucous mob scenes of jostling newsmen and security agents.

She sheltered Mrs. Leonid I. Brezhnev during one crush, saying "I'm going to take care of you" and, later, nearly found herself swept off her feet in a human sea of strongarm Soviet security men, eager photographers and struggling reporters on the subway.

Today's sightseeing stops were more suited to crowds.

The yellow stone Moscow University towers above the Lenin Hills—the prestigious, tree-shrouded south bank of the Moscow River that commands the city's best view. It is the biggest of Moscow's seven monuments to the tastes of Josef Stalin.

The late dictator built seven buildings like stone wedding cakes topped by needlespikes and ornamented with ornate gargoyles, vases and curlicues. This style known as "Stalin Gothic" was abandoned after his death.

Moscow University is so colossal a monument to Stalin Gothic that the statistic-conscious Soviets have a field day describing it—45,000 rooms, 87 miles of hallways, 170 million bricks, more than 100 elevators.

GUM—The initials start the Russian words for state department store—sprawls in 19th-century stone over several acres of the east side of Red Square, facing the Kremlin.

It is Moscow's Macy's, although most Muscovites prefer smaller neighborhood shops and leave its arcade-style departments to visitors.

Here Mrs. Nixon could strike new comparisons between today's Soviet living standards and what she last saw in 1959.

Mrs. Nixon also planned to see the New Moscow Circus in the evening.

Kremlin on Talks . . . 'Complicated'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moscow has informed the Russians and the world that the Soviet party's central committee last Friday, General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev told the members what policy for the summit would be.

The upshot was a committee decree on foreign policy, voicing unanimous support for the Brezhnev course. It went on to say that the committee instructed its Politburo to "put into action the program of peace worked out by the 24th Congress, and in accordance with the concrete situation to use various forms and methods" to achieve policy aims.

The decree said the Politburo was charged to integrate decisions on current tasks of policy with "long-term perspectives and aims of the struggle for peace, freedom and independence of peoples and for social progress and socialism."

AP Analysis

For all these decades the Communist "struggle for peace, freedom" has meant the struggle for revolution around the world. The phrase "freedom and independence of peoples" has meant what has become known as the "national liberation movement."

The 24th Congress was held 13 months ago. It seems odd that it took from then until now for a decree instructing the Politburo to carry out its decisions. And having all the power anyway, the Politburo hardly needs a central committee decree, any more than it needed the window dressing of the party congress.

Thus it seems that the committee was summoned primarily for sounding-board purposes, to reassure not only allies like North Vietnam and clients like the Arab states, but also to calm grumblers in the Soviet leadership.

On Sunday, while Nixon was on his way to Moscow, both Pravda and Izvestia devoted long front-page editorials to the foreign policy decree. Each repeated, word for word, the paragraph about use of "various methods" for coordinating immediate aims with "long-term perspectives."

"Our external policy," said Pravda, "is put into action in conditions of constant tense class struggle in the world arena, in conditions of struggle with various forces actively opposing resolution of international tensions and standing against strengthening the influence of our motherland and the whole socialist community. The circumstances demand unflinching attention to foreign policy questions and initiative in this field."

Those words seem to mean that for its own purposes the Soviet Union is involved in what Russian commentators frankly call a peace offensive. The emphasis on unanimity in support of Brezhnev suggests that there was some disagreement in high places about the wisdom of this summit.

For foreign consumption, the words of the decree and editorials seemed intended to soothe. North Vietnam now denounces the summit as a "dark and despicable political-diplomatic attempt to undermine the solidarity of those who support the Vietnamese in their struggle." Moscow may be telling Hanoi and others that they should take it easy, that Moscow knows what it is doing, that it has the perspective in view.

"Long-term perspectives" is a conveniently elastic phrase. It could mean a year or a generation. It gives Moscow leeway to pursue those specifically Soviet national interests that can be served by the talks with the U.S. President.

Withdrawal Provision Clears Senate Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The toughest anti-Vietnam language ever in the Senate—total U.S. withdrawal by Aug. 31—has cleared the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a lightning vote.

But the eventual effect of the measure may be little more than procedural to speed votes on another bill with similar language and the nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst as attorney general.

The withdrawal provision was voted Tuesday as part of a $1.7 billion foreign aid bill that was completed in only two brief sessions in one day.

The measure is identical to one that Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield amended to the State Department authorization bill pending on the Senate floor.

The Mansfield amendment would:

- Prohibit the use of funds for maintaining U.S. military forces, including combat and support forces, in South Vietnam after Aug. 31.
- Require total disengagement from South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos when the enemy releases U.S. prisoners and agrees to cease firing on American troops.

Senate feeling about the amendment is bitter and long debates about its merit are expected before an up-or-down vote could be taken.

Although there was no confirmation Tuesday, it is probable that by putting the measure in the foreign aid bill the Senate could delete it from the State Department authorization. The State bill could then be passed quickly, bringing up the Kleindienst nomination and leaving the floor open for end-of-the-war debate in June.

Foreign Relations Chairman J. William Fulbright said he hoped that Mansfield would not insist on pursuing his amendment in the State bill since identical language was incorporated in the foreign affairs bill.

Estimated 600 Red Tanks in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. analysts, although they acknowledge that South Vietnamese soldiers have scored well with a light, U.S.-supplied antitank rocket.

North Vietnamese use of armor and heavy artillery on a major scale for the first time in the war contributed significantly to enemy gains earlier in the offensive, particularly in the rout of the South Vietnamese 3rd Infantry Division at Quang Tri.

By now, a senior U.S. general said, "the South Vietnamese have gotten over the psychological shock of fighting eye to eye with tanks."

Rocket-firing U.S. helicopters and fighter planes have become more effective against North Vietnam's tanks as air crews have gained experience in dealing with them, the general said.

Intelligence sources deny they were caught by surprise when the North Vietnamese brought in armor. These sources claim they alerted top government officials well over a year ago that Hanoi was sending tanks into southern Laos near South Vietnam. However, these were mainly thin-skinned, 15-ton PTu6 amphibious vehicles, regarded by the U.S. Army as undergunned.

Last October, about six months before the enemy's spring offensive opened, U.S. military intelligence reports told of 40-ton T54 battle tanks, armored assault guns and other heavy weapons moving into the North Vietnamese region above the demilitarized zone.

At that time, U.S. analysts thought Hanoi was positioning armor defensively, perhaps to counter any new South Vietnamese push against the Ho Chi Minh supply-trail network in southern Laos.

Zonta Club Walkathon—Over The Top!

A LOT TO DANCE ABOUT — That's how Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams of Williams Lake Hotel in Rosendale feel about the Zonta Walkathon which took place Saturday, May 20 despite a wet downpour. Mrs. Williams, a Zontian and her husband gave color to the "bunion parade" by wearing authentic Bavarian outfits. The Walkathon was given for the benefit of the Kingston Narcotics Council. (Freeman photo by Powell)

EVEN THE LION ROARED in favor of the Walkathon on Saturday. Kingston Lions and Kingston Leo Clubs joined the parade after "Leo" gave them a pep talk. With the lion are (L-R) Ellen Flanagan, Leo Club member; "Skip" Kugelman, Lions Club president; and Sue Helmrich, Leo Club member. It seems everyone taking part in the benefit march arrived on the scene promptly at 9 a. m. despite the rain. Most of the 250 marchers did the entire walk in 45 minutes flat! (Freeman photo by Powell)

The heavens opened up and down came the rain but it never daunted more than 250 marchers in the Zonta Walkathon on Saturday, May 20. If anything, it was responsible for more determination, more zest and will to complete a benefit program Zontians have been working on for months. And what a success! The Zonta Walkathon, given for the benefit of the Kingston Narcotics Council and its drug prevention program, went over the top of expectations — more than $8,000 in gross receipts. Even after expenses have been cleared, the Zontian goal will have been far surpassed by the net proceeds. Walkers lined up in the downpour at nine o'clock on the button. They patiently stood there waiting for the processing of registrations to begin. The mood was one of complete cooperation — pleasant and stimulating. "I never saw such a beautiful thing in my life," one Zontian told The Women's Department today.

The rain kept people walking at a steady pace with many of them completing the distance from Ulster Shopping Plaza in 45 minutes. They arrived too early for the speakers, too early for refreshments but no one seemed to mind at all. The Zonta Club Walkathon was headed up by co-Chairman Colleen Crescino, immediate past president of the club, and Beverlee Mulligan. Other Zontians working on the project included Sister

OH, MY ACHING FEET! — Bernard Farrell, principal of the Chambers School and Dr. Elmer S. McKay, who heads up the Kingston Narcotics Council, take time out to soothe some aching feet in the Walkathon. Actually, they were trying out the walk prior to May 20th and little did they dream that in addition to aching feet they were going to be soaking wet. Dr. McKay was overwhelmed with the success of the project. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Mary Charles, current club president; Mickey Duncan, Marianne Williams, Helen Geneis, Angela Goffredi general committee; Dorothy A. Narel, Alma Frederick, Gertrude Schomer, publicity; Charlotte Shuler and Phyllis Barlow, mail committee; Sister Mary Charles and Dr. Audrey Hamilton, first aid and security; Marie Matthews and Mary Jo Dunham, refreshments; Chris Gallop, Gloria Myers, Maureen Graham, Plaza Check Point; Angela Goffredi, Virginia Ellis and others, reception at the Plaza; Maude Snyder, Kay Sullivan, bookkeeping. Zonta is an organization of executive business and professional women united to give service. Each club member is required to give time, talent, inspiration and energy to the betterment of the local and world community and this they did with the Zonta Walkathon. There is little doubt that Zontians will continue to act to meet the civic, social and educational needs of this community.

Champagne Opening Socialites, Artists Enjoy Gala Opening of Gallery

CHAMPAGNE OPENING at Jarvis Gallery in Woodstock on Saturday, May 20 brought out the finest gathering of artists, patrons of the art, and many prominent social personalities. It was a tremendous success despite heavy downpours throughout the day. Here, Mrs. Trudy Jarvis, gallery director, chats with John Pike whose most recent paintings are included in the current exhibit. Mr. Pike, internationally known and acclaimed watercolor artist, has included two oil paintings in the Jarvis show as well. Mrs. Jarvis and Mr. Pike will be seen on television, Channel 2, Thursday at 8 p. m. and again on Friday at 1:30 p. m. They were televised by Cablevision. (Freeman photo by Powell)

Such well known names in the art world as John Pike, Fritz Werner, Franklin Alexander, Max Bill, Richard Anuskiewicz, Ben Cunningham, Barbara Phillips, Milton Avery represented in the gala opening of Jarvis Gallery in the former Marsh Museum in Woodstock on Saturday, May 20. The almost endless list of articulate exhibitors won just critical comments from a guest list of well known social personalities, art collectors and fellow artists gathered for the occasion despite rain that never seemed to let up the entire day. Guests attended from New York City, Philadelphia and all parts of Ulster and Northern Dutchess Counties. It was, in fact, a top drawer social and artistic event.

The occasion brought back to life a building which had once figured prominently in the history of Woodstock for it housed an important collection of American folk art. Today, this same collection can be seen on the first floor of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C.

The exhibit was further enhanced by special spring floral arrangements created by Ann Fochi of West Hurley. Jarvis Gallery will now be open to the public every day except Wednesday from 1-6 p. m. There is no admission charge.

Survey Shows 'Ms.' Is Catching On

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—When in doubt, use "Ms."
That's the philosophy of an increasing number of government workers when they need to refer to women in correspondence and other official documents.

A survey of more than a dozen government departments and agencies indicated no official policy exists on the use, or nonuse, of the title which some have proposed as a substitute for the titles "Miss" and "Mrs."

Most of those interviewed expressed the view of Pentagon spokesman John Becker, who said, "We have no objection to 'Ms.' But in routine correspondence, we use 'Miss' or 'Mrs.' according to our policy book. However, if a woman signs herself 'Ms.' in a letter, we address her that way in the reply."

Those government workers who do use "Ms." regularly say it simplifies record keeping, saves time and avoids embarrassing mistakes.

"For one thing, it's efficient when you make lists," said Rosslyn Kleeman at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "It saves so much time, and the time saves money. We use it in our office automatically."

Ms. Kleeman, acting director of HEW's Woman's Action Program, personally prefers the new title. She said it eliminates the possibility of discrimination against married women.

"We don't ask men if they're married or plan to raise families," she said. "So why should we ask women?"

Several personnel directors said it is often necessary for insurance purposes to know if an employee is married and has dependents, but that for divorced women the title can be misleading.

At the White House, there appears to be some debate about whether "Ms." is appropriate.

Barbara Franklin, who's in charge of recruiting women for top government positions, said she uses it. Roland Elliot, who handles the President's correspondence, said he uses it if a woman signs herself that way.

But a member of the first lady's staff, Gwen King, said, "we certainly don't do it in Mrs. Nixon's correspondence."

We have ways of finding out whether a woman is married or not."

Mrs. King said she asked Mrs. Nixon who told her "to continue as we have been doing. We'll keep in the same groove."

Mrs. King noted that not every woman wants to be addressed as "Ms."

For example, a Connecticut woman addressed a letter to HEW's "Miss" Kleeman who is actually a "Mrs." to complain that she must be illiterate.

The woman said that in a letter she received from HEW, Ms. Kleeman had misspelled "Miss" in two places.

Fashions Are Big

By ANN HENCKEN
NEW YORK (AP)—Big sleeves, big coats, big shoes—some fall fashions have ballooned in size.
"I concentrated on big sleeves," said designer Issey Miyake, following his fall show for Paris Collections Monday.

His clothes are a great blend of familiar and strange looks. He showed big-sleeved lamb wool jackets—very short—over thigh-high wrapped platform boots and pants in an unusual cotton, woven to look quilted.

"It took me a year to develop the fabric," said Miyake, who used it for reversible jackets, is bright blocks of color, as well as peddle pushers and even shorts.

His sleeves got even bigger and rounder for evening—in snow and rain print blouses and pants.

Miyake likes man-made suede combinations, sometimes in monotonous, ending in peculiar shoes and boots which he designs. They are large platform styles, some with turned up toes and ankle lacing.

The thick soles are made of cork so they're very light, says Miyake.

His midi pants showed off the shoes to their best or worst advantage—depending on how you feel about them.

For his generous, blousy evening dresses, he used a mathematical print, designed by Makiko Minakawa—instead of the popular plaids.

Dear Mrs. Post:
Would it be permissible for a divorcee in her early fifties, with a teenage daughter, to invite a divorced man whom she plans to marry, to visit her for a few days? She and her daughter are the only occupants of the house. The girl is at school all day except for weekends, and attends classes at a nearby school two evenings a week.

If the man accepts the invitation, would that indicate a lack of concern for the lady's reputation?

Mrs. D.

Dear Mrs. D.:
Even today, in our enlightened society, certain actions, rightly or wrongly, are invariably criticized. An unmarried man and woman staying together falls into this category. A teenage girl who is out of the house much of the time is hardly an adequate chaperon. While this man and woman are certainly old enough to be responsible for their actions, they are inevitably laying themselves open to criticism if they flaunt convention, and it is up to them to decide how much this matters to them.

Men generally do not worry about convention as much as women, and I do not think this acceptance of the invitation would indicate lack of concern — merely lack of perception.

Dear Mrs. Post:
Recently I wrote a note of sympathy and put an Easter seal on the back. Is that wrong? I thought a seal stamp from a charity was all right — Christmas seals, Boys Town, etc. One neighbor said that not even a return address should be used. Will you please comment on this?

Adrian Sims

Dear Mrs. Sims:
Your neighbor is right about the seal, wrong about the return address. The address is simply practical matter, ensuring that the writer knows if for some reason his note is not delivered. But the colorful seal, in spite of its admirable purpose, detracts from the seriousness of the contents of a note of condolence.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that I receive each week, I will send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen, and its answer, will be published in this column every Friday. Send your questions to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper, and don't forget to include your name and address.

The LWV plans to review the situation of women in both elected and appointed positions on all levels of government, the role of women in political parties, on commissions, in the school system and in public service jobs. As an introduction to the proposed study, the program committee presented a panel discussion on the theme "Women in Politics." Moderated by Rita Jackaway, the panel included Marianne Darrow, Malinda Davis, Carl Roper and Ellen Donovan. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What makes a woman cheat on her husband? He's a hard worker, gives her all he can and has never mistreated her in any way. They have gone thru a lot of rough times together and have six beautiful children from 10 years old down to 2.

The woman is myself, Abby. I am not in love with my husband, but I can't tell him that or it would kill him.

I have met another man who means everything to me. It's not just sex. We enjoy being together, talking on the phone, and a lot of little things.

He is leaving the state soon and has asked me to go with him. I told him I would go. I love my children, Abby, but there is no way I can take them with me.

What can my husband do to me if I leave him with six children? Don't tell me to see a head shrinker. I am not crazy. I just don't want to pass up the only chance I've ever had for real happiness. Help me.

SAD BUT HAPPY
DEAR SAD: You need

much more help than I can give you in a letter. Discuss this with someone whose opinions you respect. (A clergyman.) Just talking things out will enable you to see them more clearly. Without knowing him, I would say that a man who would ask a mother to leave six small children is no bargain.

DEAR ABBY: There is a question I have been wanting to ask you for a long time.

What do you say when some idiot comes up to you, just stands there, and says, "I'll bet you don't remember me, do you?"

TONGUE TIED

DEAR TONGUE TIED: I say, "You're absolutely right! Who are you?"

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box 69700, L.A. CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

No Snow, But There's Still Skiing

GARIBALDI, Brazil (AP) — Looking for a really off beat winter sport? Try tropical skiing in Brazil. You can ski all year round in your Bermudas and a T-shirt. Here is sledding to you, heart's content and an unending supply of champagne. There's just one hitch: no snow. Garibaldi, population 8,000, sweaters, and a cozy ski lodge unded by Italian immigrants with a fireplace to warm the after-ski crowd when the mercury hits a low of 59 degrees. There's also an air conditioner in case it gets a bit warmer. Soon, it will have a skating rink (for the roller skate crowd), a ski-jumping trampoline, and a skyscraper hotel in the shape of a champagne bottle. "President Medici Ski Sta-ion" is the brainchild of David Santini, a 38-year-old Brazilian civil engineer who caught the ski bug on his honeymoon in Italy 10 years ago. Longing to do something for his hometown, he combed Europe for ideas for artificial ski slopes. After trying everything from plastic to rubber, Santini settled for polyethylene, started a factory which produces bathmats at slack times during the year, and bought the handsome real estate overlooking Garibaldi. Five years and $180,000 later, without a single bank loan, Santini had cleared the brush around the pine trees and the cactus and clamped 120,000 pieces of polyethylene triangles together on three runs. Soon, the town of Garibaldi slopes, with the lift thrown in free. Skiing on polyethylene is faster than on snow. The snowplow technique works, but it takes a bit longer to turn. Advanced skiers say parallel turning and braking does not stop as suddenly as on powder or even crusty snow.

Pinewood Derby Pack 103 Feature

HURLEY prize was won by Patrick Harder, Den I, for the fastest car; second prize went to John McConnell, Webelos Den; third prize to Alan Hoyt, Den II. John McConnell's car also won a prize for being the best-looking.

Cubmaster Dan Callahan gave achievement awards to the following Cub Scouts: Jeffrey Cole, Robert Gatton, Stephen Hakim, Alan Hoyt, Doug Meurs and Michael Schoonmaker. Denner bars were awarded to Lance Holmquist, assistant denner bars to Michael Schoonmaker.

A closing ceremony was presented by Den III led by Mrs. Robert Fiore.

The Pack's April Meeting was opened by a flag ceremony presented by Den I under the leadership of Mrs. Edgar Meurs.

Awards were earned by Tom Amato, Stephen Hakim and David Loy. At the same time Tom Amato was being transferred to Pack 103's Webelos Den and was welcomed by Webelos Leader Al Trowbridge. Three Webelos Scouts, Tom Antonovich, Doug Meurs and Mike Stinton graduated to Boy Scouting and were received into membership by Scoutmaster Dick Ruth and Boy Scouts representing Troop 103 at a unique candlelight ceremony.

An interesting feature of the meeting was a rare film depicting early Ulster County railroading shown and explained by Henry Millonig of Kingston.

On Saturday, April 29, Cub Scout Pack 103 was taken on a 5-mile hike along the Mohonk trails to the Skytop Tower. The outing for many Cub Scouts was their first hiking experience. Bus transportation to the Mountain Rest was provided by James Hoyt.

Just Scouts in September

A Name Change

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Say goodbye to the old Boy Scouts. Come September they'll be known only as Scouts and many will be sporting bright red berets.

Cub Scout den mothers also will get a new look that includes miniskirts and hot pants as official uniforms.

The Scouts, in convention here, are not only modernizing the uniform, but initiating major changes that will give Scouts a new image and more leadership responsibility that is intended to better prepare them for urban life.

The traditional Boy Scout Handbook is being rewritten to reflect contemporary life and problems. Scouts in the inner city will be taught how to treat rat bites as well as snake bites and how to negotiate a subway system as well as a mountain trail.

"If Scouting is to make the kind of contribution to this country over the next decade that it has for the past 60 years, it must be sensitive to the real needs of our youth everywhere," said Alden G. Barber, national chief scouting executive.

More than 4,000 Scout executives are here for the week-long 62nd annual convention.

The word "Boy" is being dropped because a two-year study found that youths were being turned off by it, a Scout official said. The organization, however, will retain the name Boy Scouts of America.

The study also found that Scouts wanted a more modern uniform, more decision-making responsibility and a more flexible system of advancement.

The red beret is already being worn by some inner city troops and its use will be optional. A troop may elect to wear the field cap or even the traditional Smokey the Bear hat. The scouting spokesman said, "I have a hunch the beret is going to be very popular."

The neckerchief also becomes optional wear in favor of a casual open collar and the trousers are being restyled along contemporary lines without the red piping on the pockets. Scouts 14 and 15 years old can elect to wear Explorer-type green uniforms instead of khaki.

The merit badges are being redesigned so that all will be oval and Scouts not interested in camping can pick from such fields as atomic energy, water skiing, railroading and radio-

Maggs Named Director Of Cubs at Tri-Mount

KINGSTON — Richard Dillon, president of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America which serves Greene and Ulster Counties, announced today that the Executive Board of the Council has appointed Thomas O. Maggs as the director of one of the nation's first Cub Scout Day Camps to be located at the Camp Tri-Mount Scout Reservation in East Jewett.

Maggs serves Greene County and the Town of Saugerties as the District Scout Executive. The Council has seen a tremendous growth in membership in the last two years, and with this has come a challenge for more Cub Scout involvement.

It is hoped that the new Day Camp will be a benefit not only to the young Scouts, but also to the adults involved with these young people. Program plans for the Cub Scout Day Camp '72 which should appeal to the Cub Scout and relate to the adventure of Cub Scouting are: Cub World, Cub Scout Days, Cub Frontier Days, and Cub Country.

Dillon also announced that Michael Dunnigan of the Minnewaska District and Charles Metzler of the Mohican District will be assisting Maggs. He also said that those Cubs that have not as yet registered should do so by contacting the Council office, 110 Prince Street, Kingston.

Discuss Start of First Aid Squad

ACCORD — Discussion on the establishment of an Explorer First Aid Post highlighted the recent monthly meeting of the Kermonkson - Accord First Aid Squad.

Alan Ford of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, supplied information on the formation and sponsoring of an Explorer First Aid

Post within the squad's area. The age bracket for this portion of scouting, he noted, is from 14 to 21 years, but that the post could set a minimum age limit of 16 or 17 years because it would be involved with first aid practices. Both boys and girls may hold membership in the post. The matter will be discussed further by squad members.

The Ways and Means Committee of the squad reported that it has distributed containers for donations. The containers should be returned to Marge Jackson before April 30.

Discussion at the meeting also included the possibility of the purchase of a second ambulance.

Mrs. Dolores Gray and Robert Lewis Jr. were admitted as new members.

Brownies 77 At Garden Center

WOODSTOCK — The Woodstock Garden Center recently played host to Brownie Troop 77 led by Mrs. James Robinson and assisted by Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. John Natoli, Mrs. Edward McLaughlin and Mrs. Carl Ruoff.

Bruce Anderson gave the Brownies a tour of the nursery showing them the different plants and flowers. Upon leaving, each of the 3 girls present were given a potted petunia and each assistant received a geranium plant.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: ahead of you and accomplish a good deal on this rather strange day when nobody seems to be recreation minded. Try to please fellow workers, too. A happy day, p.m. just the same.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day for recreation for you and your friends, so make the most of invitations, etc. Show mate that you are indeed devoted and affectionate. You have been a little standoffish lately.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have plenty of vitality now and can make those repairs, etc., around the home that will beautify and make it more comfortable, too. Prepare for those ambitious projects you have in mind as well. Think.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Organizing all of your affairs now requires your gadding about seeing the right people mostly. Show that you are able to communicate easily with others. Plan that short trip today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A fine day for making collections and payments that will improve your credit and keep you from worry. Do not neglect government matters that are important. Much devotion to mate is wise in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what your true position is with a partner who is very vital to your scheme of things. Situations rise up that give you an inkling as to your position with the general public and kin. Use wisdom in handling.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get right down to all that work today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid one who is trying to play a trick on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have fine plans which only require that you persevere in order to make a success of them. New contacts who have had much experience can be helpful to you. Coming to a meeting of minds early is fine.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people who will be full of vim and vigor but will be very opinionated. This could irritate others, if you do not teach your child while young to listen to what others have to say before coming to a decision, or taking a firm stand. Such training is the big clue to real success in this lifetime. The field of investigation is especially good here, whether man or woman. Send to the best schools you can afford.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

WE TALL ONES: (Q.) A girl wrote you about her fat lips. In answering her you listed some troubles she DIDN'T have. One thing you told her was that she was not "tall and gawky."

Why do you have to associate those two words? In behalf of the tall girls of America, let me say that I wholeheartedly resent this. Not all tall girls are gawky and not all gawky girls are tall. In our town there is a group of girls known as the High Steppers. To be a member of this club a girl must be tall. Every member is lovely.

In the future we tall girls would appreciate your not giving readers the impression that to be tall is an affliction. For years I was considered tall at five-seven. Now my daughter is five-ten and is a perfectly beautiful reason for my resenting aspersions on tall girls.

What you said about fat was OK, heavy thighs or monstrous hips, OK.

You are apparently not tall yourself or you could never have written the words "tall and gawky."—Tall and Certainly Not Gawky in Connecticut.

(A.) I am the same height as your daughter, five feet 10 inches tall. Five-ten is beautiful when all is in correct proportion, gracefully carried and tastefully adorned.

But your letter is proof that we tall girls have to be especially careful not to be awkward or ungainly, which are synonyms for gawky.

You seem to be a little sensitive about your height. I hope that every girl or woman who fears she is too fat or too big or too heavy in general or too heavy in the thighs or too monstrous in the hips won't write and accuse me of picking on her.

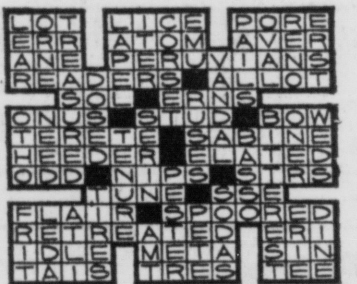

I also hope that any too-fat or too-big or too-heavy or too-hippy or too-thick-thighed or too-gawky girl or woman who reads this will realize it is time to go to work on herself, and do so. Whether she is short, medium or tall in height.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope can be answered.)

Nixon Seen Live on Television

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The subdued airport reception for President Nixon on his arrival in Moscow was seen live and in color, via satellite, on American television Monday morning.

And viewers of the home screen undoubtedly were reminded of the similarly subdued airport greeting he received when he landed at Peking earlier this year for another historic visit that was televised back to the United States.

American viewers could note the relatively modest-sized crowd on hand at the airport, and they were also able to hear the small cheer that went up when Mr. and Mrs. Nixon disembarked from their plane.

Good Closeups

There were very good closeup pictures of the various principals, and of course there was band music and a military review, and everything seemed quite proper, according to protocol, out there in the pleasant spring weather.

Back in a CBS-TV New York studio, meanwhile, the network came up with some sharp teamwork between newsmen Charles Collingwood and a Princeton professor, James Hadley Billington, who is an expert on Russian affairs as well as a television find—a strong video presence, well informed, and with the looks of a matinee idol. He will be a special guest consultant for CBS-TV during coverage of Mr. Nixon's Soviet visit.

Viewers saw the Nixons go over and personally greet some of those in the crowd. And after the coverage of the airport welcome for the President, the live telecast ended.

Little Network Coverage

Throughout the remainder of the day Monday, there was little network video coverage of the Nixon mission until the nightly news telecasts. And network spokesmen say the reason was as follows:

All live television transmission of the visit, they say, is controlled by the Russians. In effect, added the spokesmen, American network newsmen in Moscow simply work with whatever live picture is provided them during the trip. EDT, and also on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" June 4.

the film reports seen later Monday on video's evening telecasts were shot by network cameramen and sent via satellite.

NBC-TV's "Today" series, by the way, was used as an outlet for some of the coverage from Russia. And isn't it about time the news broadcasters on "Today" are allowed to stop introducing commercials?

Senators George S. McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey, two leading contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination, will appear together in special one-hour editions of CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" Sunday at 6 p.m., EDT, and NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" next Tuesday at 9:30 p.m., EDT, and also on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" June 4.

Here is another teachers' hand for advanced pupils. Sallie Johnson of Westport, Conn., who uses it, has won around a dozen women's national titles.

Sallie suggests that South gamble on seven, but does not criticize a bid of just six spades. The play at either contract should be made the same.

South must duck the heart lead for two reasons. The first reason is that West just might hold nine hearts. The second is that there is no hurry about taking the discard on the ace of hearts. The nine of spades is a sure entry to dummy and South wants to find out something more about the hand before committing himself.

Therefore, South ruffs the first trick and plays his ace of Trumps. Both opponents follow nicely and South can now explore in the minor suits.

South starts with diamonds. He plays his ace and is rewarded by seeing the queen or jack drop from the West hand. He continues with the diamond king and when the other high diamond drops, South enters dummy by means of a low spade to the nine, discards his jack of clubs on the heart ace and claims all the tricks.

South could also make the hand by discarding the jack of clubs at trick one, but the normal discard would be the diamond 10 and he would wind up losing the club finesse and the grand slam.

Managing Editor's Notebook

We had a kind of singular friend. That is, we had this friend until one day last week. We understood that it was a friendship of only a temporary nature but hoped that the acquaintanceship would last a little longer than it did, and not end on such an abrupt and disappointing note.

This particular friend we're writing about was a cardinal (of the bird variety). He had the reddest hue imaginable outside of a can of tomato paste, and to watch him flit and dart over the lawn was as exciting as it was relaxing. He could perform Immelmanns and banks, and go into power dives that brought him to within an inch of crashing into the ground before pulling up.

He and his mate, a not-so-colorful female, had nested in a big old pine tree right off the back kitchen door. The female didn't sortie out too often, undoubtedly being more concerned with the chick that had been hatched in their lair in the upper branches of the tree. She left the derring-do in aerodynamics to her more aggressive and colorful mate while she tended the homefront as he made his forays for the family meal or whatever else birds do.

And that's how the two of us became acquainted. I'd be sitting under a clump of pines out back, and he'd venture as close to me as bird discretion would allow—often chirping at me in a nagging way, seemingly saying that I was trespassing on his preserve regardless of who paid the taxes; and at other times going into one of those wild flying routines, perhaps for the sheer hell of it.

But as in so many Edens this one also had its particular devil. In fact, it had two. A pair of rather large house cats happen to live with us—and like all cats their predilection for bird hunting is all encompassing.

When either one or both cats came outside and camped at the base of the old pine, figuratively scratching their feline heads on how to get at that chick high up in the branches, my cardinal friend and his mate would become frenzied in attempting to distract that cats' attention from the whereabouts of their offspring.

The cardinal many times would place himself in unhealthy proximity to the cats, diverting their attention from the pine. Or the two birds would wheel and soar through the air, clattering such a racket that you'd think they were trying to drive their enemies deaf.

It was all very interesting to observe, but as I said before it had to end.

One morning last week, the chick apparently fell from the nest and our female cat, who should have been named Diana for her hunting prowess, pounced on the fledgling and raced to the back field with its prize. The hysterical chatter of the cardinals gave warning of the dire emergency that had developed, but even a quick run after the culprit was futile. The damage had been done. And what was just as sad was that upon my returning to the house, my cardinal friend and his mate were no longer to be seen. In fact, I haven't seen them since.

THE GOSSIP COLUMN by ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Why is there so much talk about the book "An Insider's View of Washington" and how did the author get his information? — C.P., Charleston, S.C.

A: You're speaking of "The Washington Pay-Off: An Insider's View of Corruption in Government," by Robert Winter-Berger, another Lyle Stuart-promoted sensation. The talk is due to startling disclosures that imply more than just spicy chit-chat about influence-peddling. For instance, one of the tales is of how President Lyndon Johnson came to then Speaker John McCormack in 1963 and wept hysterically over the Bobby Baker scandal. According to Winter-Berger, LBJ said: "John, that s.o.b. is going to ruin me. If that (bleep) talks, I'm gonna land in jail. I practically raised that (bleep) and now he's gonna make me the first President of the U.S. to spend the last days of his life behind bars." Winter-Berger is a former lobbyist who used to work for both Democrats and Republicans. He claims he actually witnessed the LBJ-McCormack talk. Since Winter-Berger also insinuates he was a spy for the Justice Department, you can swallow hard and decide for yourself how much of the book to believe.

Q: Are we going to see Ruby Keeler and "No, No, Nanette" at the St. Louis Municipal Opera this summer as rumored? — G.E., St. Louis.

A: Afraid not. The sizzling show-biz feud between producer Cyma Rubin and her performers has reached such epidemic proportions that the producer just cut off her nose to spite her face. Though Cyma and her husband own the entire profits of this legendary Broadway musical revival and would stand to net around $175,000 for one week's playing in St. Louis, Cyma has now refused to take the show out. Why? Because Ruby Keeler, Patsy Kelly, Helen Gallagher and the cast asked for a fair share of the profits. Mrs. Rubin wanted to give them only their regular week's salary plus half. Thus, the happiest show in town onstage is now the unhappiest when the producer is backstage where they call her "The Rank Amateur" and "The Wicked Witch of West Broadway." Since the book came out telling how Cyma engineered the removal of her co-producer, Harry Rigby, and quoting Cyma's acid remarks about everybody else in the show, nobody has spoken to the lady. She's the richest, loneliest producer in New York.

Q: Are Marcello Mastroianni and Catherine Deneuve still an item — and is that Catherine in the TV perfume ads? — H.K., Boston

A: As Molly Bloom said, yes, yes, yes. Of course, you see Catherine only partly because she will, any edition, be delivered of Mastroianni's child. Catherine was never exactly sure when to expect the Italian idol's baby because she forgot to keep count, she says. Marcello is so smitten with his lady love he scarcely ever leaves her side and they are holed up in their Avenue Georges Mandel apartment in Paris. In fact, M.M. is so infatuated, pals think at last he may try divorce — Italian style. If legal severance from his Italian wife of many years doesn't work, then Marcello may apply for French citizenship and go the Sophia Loren-Carlo Ponti route to divorce and legitimacy.

Q: Is it true that Gene Hackman, who won an Oscar for "The French Connection," wasn't even wanted for the role? — C.B., Cambridge, Mass.

A: Yes, and it was Richard Zanuck and David Brown, two former Twentieth Century-Fox executives, who really pushed for Hackman. As is typical of machinations in the movie business, Zanuck and Brown were the men responsible for getting Fox to make the movie and yet when the praise was being handed around at the Academy Awards nobody had the style to acknowledge this fact. The team of Zanuck and Brown has been fired by Fox and is now at another studio.

Q: Does Aristotle Onassis actually run Greece from behind the scenes? — S.L., Waterbury, Vt.

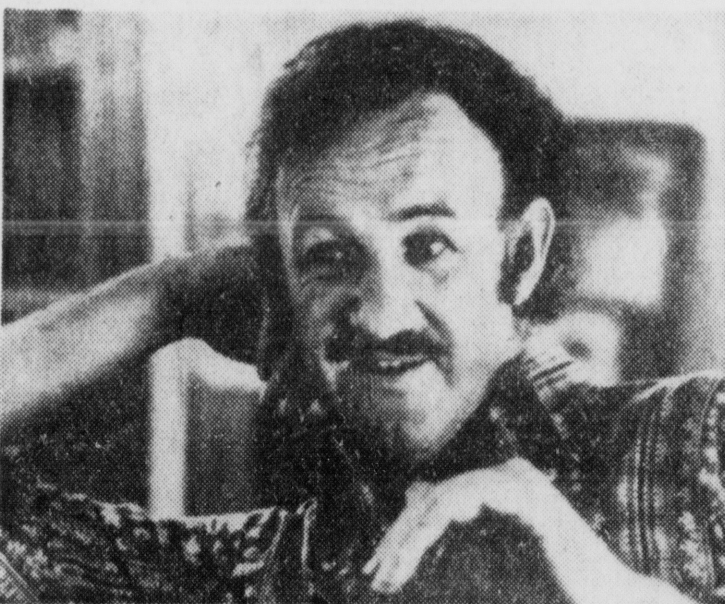

A: Ari has some clout, but he certainly doesn't run Greece. If he did, he wouldn't have lost out on his bid for the rights to Greece's third biggest oil refinery. After deliberating for three years, the government awarded the oil rights to a Greek banker.

Keeler: Ruby saw red.

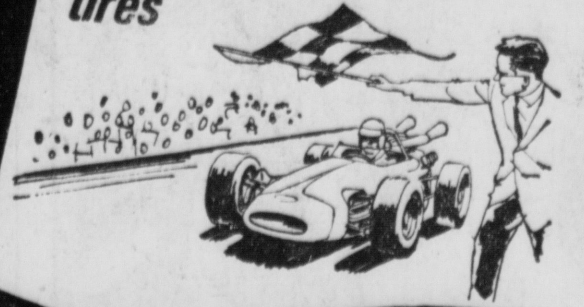

Catherine: De Neuve of dat girl.

Hackman: The Genes count.
